INSISTS ON PLACE IN LEAGUE

German Submits New Demands to Allies; Mueller May Form New Cabinet

London, June 21.—A Weimar dispatch to the Times today states that Herr Noske, now minister of war, has been selected as premier in a new Cabinet, and that Matthias Erzberger will head the new peace delegation, which will sign the allied terms.

By ALFRED G. ANDERSEN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Weimar, June 20 (7 p. m.).—The German government tonight sent word to the Peace Conference at Versailles that it had been unable to build a Cabinet that would be willing to sign the peace terms unless admitted to the League of Nations before January next. The note sent to the allies also stated that Danzig must be under a protectorate of the League of Nations for two years.

The stipulations for admittance to the League of Nations and the government of Danzig by that body came from the Social Democrats.

Bulletins!

LONDON—While the makeup of the new German cabinet is uncertain, said a Reuter dispatch from Berlin today, it is considered likely that Dr. Edouard David will be selected as premier. Count von Bernstorff is slated to be foreign minister and Dr. Dernberg minister of justice.

LONDON—A Central News dispatch from Weimar says the German Democratic party has voted to sign the peace treaty providing that Germany will be admitted to the League of Nations soon and that the allies will not extradite any Germans.

AMSTERDAM—The German People's party and the National People's party have issued a joint declaration that acceptance of the allies' peace terms would be a national disgrace, according to advices from Weimar today.

LONDON—Francisco Nitti, former minister of finance, is expected to succeed Orlando as Italian premier, according to a Rome dispatch to the Daily Express today.

TWO BOSTON WOMEN IN TENNIS FINALS

Mrs. Grace W. Wightman, formerly Hazel Hotchkiss of Boston, thrice winner of the national tennis championship, who met Miss Zindenstein in the final round of this year's championship women's teourney at Philadelphia today.

Marion Zindenstein, representing the Longwood Cricket Club, won her chance to meet Mrs. Wightman in the finals by defeating the champion, Miss oMila Bjudstedt, in the semi-finals at Philadelphia yesterday.

Rescue League Is Working to Save Barroom Cats

Speaking of preparations for prohibition—The Animal Rescue League of Boston today launched a crusade to care for the barroom cats that will be thrown out of their jobs after July 1.

The valiant Toms and faithful Tabbies that have guarded the beer drips and crackers and cheese of the free lunch from intemperate rodents on dissipation bent are not to join the ranks of the unemployed.

Special arrangements are underway at the league home in Carver street for taking care of large numbers of reformed felines released from the liquor trade. Mrs. Huntington Smith, president of the league, today issues a statement urging proprietors of saloons who have cats they do not know how to dispose of to inform her in advance of July 1, so agents of the organization may get them.

TAKE BELL-ANS BEFORE MEALS and see how fine good digestion makes you feel.—Advt.

Two Boston women today fought for the national tennis championship, playing the final match for the title on the Philadelphia Cricket Club's historic courts.

Mrs. George Wightman met Miss Marion Zinderstein, of the Longwood Cricket Club, who yesterday defeated Miss Molla Bjurstedt, champion for four years, by a score of 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Like Miss Zinderstein, whom she played today, Mrs. George Wightman is a member of the Longwood Club. She was Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, and before her marriage thrice won the title. She is at present indoor singles champion.

Although Miss Zinderstein played a game seldom surpassed on the Philadelphia courts, experts say that in justice to Miss Bjurstedt that the vanquished champion was below form, owing to a recent accident.

"But I shall come back," said Miss Bjurstedt, showing her disappointment at the close of the match.

BIG DALLAS-BOSTON FLIGHT ENDS MONDAY

Six army De Havilland biplanes, en route from Dallas, Tex., to Boston, are due at Franklin Field Monday noon. The planes will arrive in Albany tomorrow. The squadron is in command of Lieutenant-Colonel H. B. Clagett. The fliers include Majors J. W. Simons and R. S. Brown, Captain Herman Fludgelad, Lieutenants Jack E. Duke, Jr., and Robert F. Midkiff.

U. S. Will Still Sell Liquor Stamps After July 1

Washington, D. C., June 21.—"I see no reason to doubt that the war-time prohibition, as provided in the agricultural bill, will become effective July 1," Internal Revenue Commissioner Daniel C. Roper declares.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue, he added, will continue to enforce the tax laws as related to alcoholic beverages until they are repealed by Congress and in accordance with the opinion of the attorney general, will continue to sell stamps to applicants "with the distinct understanding that the purchase and possession of such stamps in no wise authorizes the manufacture or sale of the beverages for which they may be intended."

POISON IN BODY OF WILKINS

New York Expert Testifies He Found 47½ Grains of Sulphate of Lead

Lawrence, June 21.—Mrs. Bessie May (Skeels) Lundgren sat in the court today where she is being tried for the murder by poisoning of Miss Florence W. Gay, an Andover school teacher, and heard Dr. Alexander O. Gettler of Bellevue Hospital, New York, tell the court that he had found 47½ grains of sulphate of lead in the body of her brother, Albert J. H. Wilkins of Bayonne, N. J., of whose murder she is accused.

Lawrence, June 21.—Mrs. Bessie May (Skeels) Lundgren suffered a nervous attack and hovered on the brink of complete physical collapse at the opening of the twelfth day of her trial on the charge of murder of Florence W. Gay of Andover. Court was delayed nearly an hour while physicians applied restoratives.

The strain of yesterday's ordeal when the "Sunshine Nurse" learned for the first time that she was also under indictment in New Jersey on the charge of having poisoned her brother, Albert J. H. Wilkins, proved almost too much for the frail little defendant.

HUSBAND FEARS RELAPSE.

Alfred Lundgren, devoted husband of the accused nurse, declared that she had passed the worst night since her trial began, and that he feared a relapse of the troubles which so long delayed her trial. Attorney Daniel J.

The federation's endorsement stipulated that it should not be construed as to deny to the people of Ireland the right of self-determination.

HITS LEDGE IN FOG; 350 RESCUED

North Land Passengers, New York to Boston, Safe on West Island

Buzzards Bay, June 21.—Three hundred and fifty passengers on the Metropolitan line steamship North Land were imperiled early today when the ship crashed onto a ledge on West Island, about ten miles from New Bedford. The accident occurred in a dense fog about 2:50 a. m. The North Land was en route from New York to Boston.

The passengers were landed on the island and were later sent to New Bedford and taken to Boston by rail.

The North Land, commanded by Captain Charles Snow, was groping her way toward the Buzzards Bay entrance to the Cape Cod Canal. Only the slowness with which she was proceeding prevented a more serious accident. As it is, the vessel's bottom is badly punctured and the two middle holds, Nos. 2 and 3, are flooded.

Owing to the fog, the North Land was proceeding with extreme caution with the aid of a lead line. The crash occurred while the line still showed ample depth, a fact which shows the precipitous nature of the shore at that point.

The North Land carried freight as well as passengers. Five years ago this month the steamship went ashore with seventy-five passengers on Bartlett's reef while en route from Portland to New York.

There will be no boat from Boston to New York tonight because of the accident, but Monday night the Calvin Austin of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., will be put on the run. The Scott Wrecking Company of New London has crews at work trying to float the Northland following the removal of her cargo. She will be towed to New York for repairs.

CLOAK-MAKERS VOTE ON STRIKE TUESDAY

A strike vote of the 3000 members represented by the Joint Board of Cloak and Shirt-makers Union will be taken Tuesday at the headquarters, No. 724 Washington street, according to Benjamin Kurland, president, and Abraham Rothstein, business agent. "The outlook," declared Leo Robbins, secretary of the board, "is in favor of the strike."

Today Is Longest Day; Summer at 7:54 Tomorrow

This is the longest day of the year.

Summer will make its debut at precisely 6 minutes before 8 tomorrow morning.

Sunday will be a shade shorter than today, but scarcely enough shorter to measure by the clock.

Monday will be shorter by one minute, and then every day will be shortened more and more until Winter.

To the "wets" the days had been short enough, without having them clipped just before the advent of the dreaded July 1, locally christened "Thirst of July."

Boston's daylight portion of today was 15 hours, 19 minutes from sunrise to sunset. London, several degrees farther north, had 16 hours 34 minutes of sunshine.

And if you happened to be visiting the North Pole you would have had a full measure of 24 hours of dazzling daylight with the sun swinging around in a circle above the horizon from midnight to midnight.

GENERAL ERWIN SENDS REBUFF TO ANGELES

Will Not Deal With Anyone Taking Arms Against President Carranza

El Paso, Tex., June 21.—Venustiano Carranza, not Francisco Villa, is President of Mexico and General James B. Erwin, commanding the El Paso district, accordingly, will have nothing further to do with anyone in arms against the recognized Mexican government.

This is the synopsis of the answer Felipe Angeles, Villa commander, in a reply to Angeles' request for explanation of why the United States troops drove the Villistas out of [illegible] which is on its way today to General [illegible] last Monday. The reply was handed to the Villista courier which brought General Angeles' note to General Erwin.

General Angeles' letter called General Erwin's attention to alleged precautions taken by the Villistas to avoid firing on American soil and asserted that the Villistas had so directed their fire that the bullets would fly parallel to the line rather than across it.

STORY OF TRAGIC NIGHT

Rose Ingalls Says She Dined With Barney After Deininger Was Shot

May Rose Ingalls, an important witness for the state, took the stand today in the trial of Herman L. Barney and John F. Dillon for the murder of Patrolman Charles E. Deininger in Chelsea, February 13.

Miss Ingalls, an attractive young woman smartly attired in a blue suit and [illegible], testified to meeting Barney on the night of the murder and subsequently.

She admitted under cross-examination by Attorney Juggins that the story she had originally told the police had been revised after she had been warned that she would be locked up if she did not tell the truth. She denied, however, that third degree methods had been employed with her and that she was shaken and slapped during the interview at Station 1.

Miss Ingalls said that Barney had been well known to her prior to February 13 as he had often visited the [illegible] Theatre, where she was employed as a cashier, to see his sweetheart, Mrs. Marion O'Brien, who was employed there in the same capacity.

WORE OLD OVERCOAT.

The witness said that she and Mrs. O'Brien met Barney on Tremont street the night of the killing, and that the three went together to the [illegible] House for refreshments. This was after Deininger was killed. Barney, the witness said, wore an old overcoat and a pair of old and ill-fitting trousers. He also wore a pair of horn-rimmed glasses, the witness said.

"Marion asked him where his fur coat was," said the witness. "He did not answer the question. Then she spoke about the trousers he was wearing, calling his attention to the fact that they were too short for him."

"I got mine soiled while I was working on a machine," she quoted Barney as saying. "I borrowed these from Bill."

Miss Ingalls thereupon testified to another meeting with Barney and Mrs. O'Brien on the following even-

SAY ENGLAND IS NOW STRIKING BACK AT IRELAND WITH REPRISALS

STUNG BY ATROCITY REPORT

Walsh and Dunne Cite Arrest of Countess Markiewicz as an Instance

By WILLIAM J. BUTLER,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, June 21.—The British government is accused of starting reprisals against Irish men and women, as a result of the "atrocities report" filed by the Irish-American commissioners here with the peace congress.

Charging that the Countess Markiewicz, a member of the Irish Parliament, has been jailed to prevent her from testifying at a possible inquiry by the Peace Conference Commission, Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne have sent a letter to Premier Lloyd George and the American Peace Commission requesting the release of the countess.

CALL IT REPRISAL.

The letter points out that the countess was arrested and is now being punished as a reprisal and gives the following reasons:

"Much of the detailed evidence of the atrocities committed against women prisoners in Ireland was furnished us by the Countess Markiewicz.

"She has in her possession evidence of certain unspeakable outrages the details of which have not yet been published, but which we intend to submit to the commission of inquiry when selected by the peace congress.

"We have indubitable proof at hand that during the course of our investigation in Ireland the Countess was shadowed by spies in the employ of the British government and a direct threat was made against her during the progress of our inquiry.

"FRIVOLOUS CHARGES."

"She was arrested on frivolous charges after our report was sent to you.

"The sentence imposed upon her is for a length of time which would keep her in jail during the inquiry that may be made by the peace congress.

"We sincerely hope that, animated by a decent regard for the opinion of mankind, which we know you cherish and in view of the foregoing considerations, especially having in mind the danger to the life of Countess Markiewicz through suffering in jail, you will use your great power and authority as prime minister of Great Britain to secure the immediate release of this revered and worthy woman."

Irish Secretary's Reply Will Prove a Boomerang, Says Manchester Guardian

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.
Special Cable Despatch.

London, June 21.—The reply of Ian MacPherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland, to the report of Frank P. Walsh and ex-Governor Edward F. Dunne of Illinois on alleged British atrocities, is likely to prove a political boomerang which may return to smite him, in the opinion of the Manchester Guardian. This view is also shared in Irish political quarters.

It is pointed out that the reply, avowedly prepared to influence American public opinion in favor of the present English government of Ireland, is scarcely likely to have that effect when it contains such damaging admissions as that Ireland is held by an army equipped with the latest war engines and by armed police; that numerous political prisoners have been jailed; that frequent police raids and searches were made of private homes; that private property has been seized and confiscated on the plea of "articles kept or used for seditious purposes."

All that the Irish-American commissioners at Paris have to do, the Guardian points out, is to select and collate MacPherson's admissions and present them to their countrymen in the United States without comment, except:

"That, gentlemen, is our case."

GERMANS INSIST ON ADMISSION TO LEAGUE

Dr. Mueller Reported to Have Been Chosen to Form New Cabinet

The Social Democrats rejected the Centrist party's reservations concerning Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, Germany's responsibility for the war, and the corridor of Poland.

Dr. Mueller Chosen to Form New Cabinet, Says Berlin Newspaper

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, June 21.—President Ebert has requested Dr. Mueller, leader of the Majority Socialists, to form a new Cabinet to succeed the Scheidemann ministry, according to the Berlin Vossische Zeitung. In addition to his party duties, Dr. Mueller is at present under secretary of the War Food Bureau.

The Politiken's Weimar correspondent telegraphs today that it is considered certain there that the present governmental crisis cannot be straightened out before Monday. It is supposed that the Germans will ask the allies for an extension of the time allotted.

The negotiations going on at Weimar in an effort to form a new cabinet that will sign the peace treaty, were brought to a halt at 2 o'clock this morning, according to late dispatches.

It was learned at that hour that Phillipp Scheidemann, who had resigned as chancellor, had sent a note to Versailles for delivery to the allies, refusing to acknowledge Germany's responsibility for starting the war, and refusing to accept the allies' settlement of the Polish situation.

The majority Socialists objected to this communication. Instructions were sent to the German delegation at Versailles to hold up Scheidemann's note and not to present it to the allies.

Dr. Hugo Haase, leader of the Independent Social Democratic party, joined the majority Socialists in the attack on the government.

Majority Socialists Vote Overwhelmingly for Signing of Treaty

By International News Service.

Paris, June 21.—The majority Socialists at Weimar have voted overwhelmingly in favor of signing the peace terms, according to advices reaching Paris today from Germany.

The party also went on record as favoring Dr. Mueller to head the new government and the retention of Noske as minister of war. The majority Socialists cast 104 votes out of a total of 121 in the National Assembly.

CRITICISE WILSON FOR USE OF DEFENCE FUND

Washington, June 21.—President Wilson was strongly criticised in the House for using part of his $100,000,000 national defence fund to assist in the financing of the trans-Siberian Railroad.

Representative Walsh, Republican of Massachusetts, who opened the attack charged the President with using the money for purposes other than ones for which it was appropriated.

NURSE SKEELS HARD HIT BY ORDEAL

Suffers Temporary Breakdown That Causes Delay in Poison Trial

Daley, counsel for the defendant, was seriously concerned by her condition.

Dr. W. D. Walker, Mrs. Lundgren's Andover physician, was with her for more than a half hour attempting to soothe her and restore the strength which has carried her thus far in her ordeal. Meantime Judge Thayer remained in chambers, refusing to open court until it had been ascertained whether the defendant would be able to bear up through the session. Extreme nervousness and persistent weakness were her symptoms.

Dr. William J. Sullivan and Dr. W. D. Walker came into court at 10:45 and examined Mrs. Lundgren again. On their report to Judge Thayer court convened and the jury was called into the court room at 10:50.

SEXSMITH RESUMES STAND.

Dr. George H. Sexsmith, the Bayonne, N. J., physician, who attended Alfred J. H. Wilkins in his last illness, resumed the stand and cross-examination was continued by Attorney Daley.

Q.—Did you ever know that Albert Wilkins was employed by any concern where lead was used? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever inquire? A.—No, I never did.

Q.—And he never told you that he was employed there for nine months, and that he was obliged to leave there because it did not agree with him? A.—Yes if he told me, I would not have believed it. He was never employed anywhere for nine months. He never was a man to be believed.

Dr. Sexsmith said that he had attended Wilkins for alcoholic breakdowns on previous occasions, and that during the last illness he had made eleven visits and his bill was $22.

Q.—Who paid the bill? A.—I never was paid.

Q.—Didn't you send a collector to collect that bill the day before Albert Wilkins was buried.

A.—I did not send him. He went. He received a very surly reception.

Q.—Is it your habit to send a collector for a bill before your patient is buried?

A.—With some people, yes.

Redirect examination by Attorney General Attwill.

Q.—Was the condition of Albert Wilkins' knee consistent with lead poisoning?

A.—The condition in and about the legs was consistent with lead poisoning.

Q.—Can you express an opinion, from examination of the organs at the autopsy, whether there was any apparent adequate cause of death?

WITNESS CHANGES ANSWER.

This question was objected to by Mr. Daley on the grounds that Dr. Sexsmith was not a pathologist. The court directed him to answer yes or no.

A.—No.

The witness then asked to have the question re-read and changed his answer to yes.

He said that he had assisted at many autopsies, and was connected with the Bayonne hospital, and in consequence of his experience was qualified to testify.

Q.—What is your opinion? A.—My opinion is that there was no evidence in the organs that there was an adequate cause of death.

Q.—(By Mr. Daley)—You didn't take part in the autopsy yourself? A.—No.

Witness testified that he found the condition of the organs normal, and that from his observation at the autopsy that the knee was normal, as was borne out by the X-ray findings.

The witness said that he never knew what was the cause of the pain in his patient's leg, as it did not respond to ordinary treatment. He said that he changed his diagnosis after three days and treated Wilkins for gastro-enteritis.

DR. GETTLER TAKES STAND.

Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, head of the clinical laboratory of Bellevue Hospital, was next called to the stand.

He stated that he was a pathological toxicologist for the chief medical examiner's office in New York City. The witness said he did all the clinical work for the city of New York. He assisted Dr. Haskins, medical examiner of Hudson County, in an examination of the organs of the body, as they were sent to him.

Q.—What did you find in the organs? A.—A very large amount of lead, and a small amount of morphine, what you might call a trace.

Q.—What amount of lead? A.—In the stomach I found 90 grains of sulphate of lead, 5 grains in the liver, and 1½ grain in the brain.

Q.—Can you state the total grains you found in the organs? A.—96½ grains, but remembering that only three organs were examined. There must have been lead present in other organs as well.

GIVES CAUSE OF DEATH.

Q.—What, in your opinion, was the cause of death? A.—Lead poisoning. The lead had been present in the stomach long enough to penetrate the other organs and induce lead poisoning.

Q.—Was life consistent with that amount of lead present in the organs? A.—It was not.

Ten Saugus Teachers Quit Because of Too Low Pay

Saugus schools face the loss of at least thirty teachers because of low salaries paid in that town. Already ten teachers have presented their resignations to the school committee, the reason given in every case being that higher salaries had been offered them in other cities or towns.

The committee probably will accept the resignations before the Fall term opens. It is powerless to stop the resignations, one of the members said last night, because the voters refused to appropriate enough money for the maintenance of the schools to enable the committee to increase salaries and to meet the standards of other towns.

80-YEAR-OLD WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Marblehead, June 21.—Stating that she was tired of life, Mrs. Ellen N. Richardson, aged eighty years, committed suicide here by gas. She turned the gas on in her kitchen range and stopped the window cracks with clothing.

Howard Megonical, a boarder at the house, smelled gas and broke open the kitchen door. The police were summoned and a pulmotor used, but to no avail.

A note was found on her table which, after stating that she was tired of life, said she wished to be buried by Undertaker Richard Rockett in the manner specified in the note.

PALMER DEFIANT AS HE DEFENDS BOSCH SALE

Answers Charges Following Sale of Bosch Plant to Americans

By Universal Service.

Washington, June 21.—Appearing as a witness before the Senate Judiciary Sub-committee, Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer defied any one to prove that there were irregularities in his administration of the Alien Property Custodian's office. He declared:

"My record is as clean as a hound's tooth, and I defy any man to prove the contrary."

Palmer defended himself against the specific charges filed with the committee in connection with the sale of the Bosch Magneto Company. It was charged by attorneys representing the former owners that the company had been sold for almost $2,000,000 less than its value to personal friends of Palmer's, and that the sale was conducted in a small town in Massachusetts for the purpose of enabling those buyers to obtain the property.

SALE FULLY ADVERTISED.

Palmer denied these charges, asserting that the sale was fully advertised at a cost of $6,000, and that the sale was passed upon by Cleveland H. Dodge, Otto Bannard, George L. Ingraham and Alex Griswold, Jr., who composed his "advisory committee."

The sale was made, the Attorney-General stated, because the company under German ownership was seriously interfering with orders for magnetos for British airplanes. He asserted that as alien property custodian he took over 40,000 properties, and in 8,000 of them had bitter controversies as to the facts and the law. He said:

"Few men in America have been more bitterly detested or roundly denounced by Germans and their friends and agents in this country than I have been during the last year and a half."

IN BELLIGERENT MOOD.

Palmer was in a belligerent mood when he took the stand and directed his enmity particularly against Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, at whose request Palmer's nomination for the attorney-generalship was held up, and Merton E. Lewis, former attorney-general of New York, who appeared as attorney for those who contend that the sale of the Bosch Company was not regularly handled. He attacked Lewis for an apparent misquotation of the law under which the Alien Property Custodian operated, and was not satisfied when Lewis had made an apology for the same.

Lewis related the facts surrounding the sale of the Bosch Company, and Palmer asserted there was nothing irregular about it. He declared the sale was fully advertised and that he could not have gotten a better price than that obtained. He vigorously denied having placed any of his personal friends in charge of the seized properties, adding:

"When you accuse me of selling out my government, you accuse Otto Barnard, Cleveland H. Dodge, Ralph Stone and the other members of my advisory committee. They are all experts and upstanding American citizens, and you accuse them of selling out their government.

DEFENDS SALE OF PLANT.

"I sold the Bosch plant so as to use my power to strike a blow at Germany. Mr. Lewis says we ought to have delayed the sale for a better market, for a time when industrial conditions would be more settled.

"I was not going to hunt for the best market to put millions in the treasury for a lot of Germans to hire lawyers and come and fight after the war. We did not name the date when they declared war on us. Why should I wait for the best market? Mr. Lewis charges that some one made money out of this sale. I am glad some Americans made money out of this property."

Palmer said that evidence of the German ownership of the Bosch plant was obtained by a confession of one of the dummy stockholders, Gunther Jahn, who admitted he held the stock for Robert Bosch of Stuttgart, Germany. He said that before the United States entered the war the Bosch company had large orders for munitions for the allies, and that upon instructions from Dr. Heinrich Albert the chief German agent in this country, these orders were delayed.

Palmer raised a laugh by stating that when the plant was taken over he had received a letter from Senator Frelinghuysen, recommending this same Gunther Jahn for the position of custodian of the property.

DAM SUES FOR $6,000 AFTER BEING HURT

William F. Condon of Cambridge and the City of Cambridge have each been sued for $3,000 by Charles O. Dam of Cambridge. Mabel F. Adams of Boston has been sued for $5,000 by Thomas S. Cormay of Waltham, who seeks to recover for the loss of the services of his daughter, Nora A. Cormay, and also for medical expenses. She was knocked down by the defendant's automobile.

G. O. P. BADLY SPLIT ON KNOX RESOLVE

Leaders Hesitate to Ask for Vote on It, Fearing Defeat; Conference Called

By J. BART CAMPBELL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, June 21.—A conference of Republican Senators was to be held in Senator Lodge's office in the Capitol today for the purpose, it was stated, of bringing about an agreement as to the future course to be pursued by the Republican side in the Senate with regard to the peace treaty and the League of Nations covenant incorporated in it.

Senator Lodge, majority leader and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, was to preside over the gathering. Upon him would devolve largely, it was said, the task of smoothing out the differences of opinion which have arisen among the Republican Senators with respect to the Knox resolution providing for the conclusion of peace first and the consideration of the league afterward.

NOT TO PRESS MEASURE.

It was declared by some Republican Senators that if harmony was to be restored by further amending the Knox measure that would be done, although there was a marked disposition not to press the resolution to a test vote unless the Republican majority in the Senate was certain to be almost solidly arrayed in support of it.

It was an open secret, it was added, that the majority of Republicans in favor of the resolution had diminished during the past few days to an extent that had deterred Senator Knox from seeking to call the measure up. More than one Senator on the Republican side admitted that the resolution, except in a modified form, might not be called up at all, especially as the Germans had signified their intention of signing the peace treaty.

HAS SERVED ITS PURPOSE.

It is further stated that the Knox resolution had had its desired purpose, that of serving notice on the peace commission that a large proportion of the Senate was opposed to the league covenant as "inextricably woven" with the peace treaty in its present form and that the Republican leaders of the Senate would not agree to the ratification of the document without amendment.

Whether the resolution ever came to a vote or not did not matter so much, it was added; it had had virtually the same effect as though Republican anti-league senators had signed another "round robin."

There was also talk among the Republican senators today of concentrating their opposition to the league covenant on those provisions of the covenant which they described as "more un-American" than others; the disposition of the Monroe Doctrine, which Senator Knox described as a "perversion" and a "monstrosity" and as "spineless pacifism;" the widely-discussed Article 10 of the covenant, which has been repeatedly attacked by anti-league senators; and such questions as immigration and the tariff, which they regarded as essentially domestic ones with which the American people alone should deal.

PROF. FARLOW LEFT $125,000 TO HARVARD

Bequests amounting to $125,000 will eventually come to Harvard College through the will of Professor William G. Farlow, whose will was filed in the Probate Court at East Cambridge. Professor Farlow left a valuable collection of books, papers and manuscripts on botanical subjects to the university. This gift is to be known as "the Farlow Reference Library." He leaves $25,000 in trust for his assistant, Arthur B. Seymour. Upon his death the income is to be added each year to a previous gift of $100,000 which Professor Farlow made to the university, and which is known as "the John S. Farlow Memorial Fund." After the death of Professor Farlow's wife a further sum of $100,000 is to be added to this fund.

24 DESCENDANTS AT GOLDEN WEDDING

Three great-grandchildren, thirteen grandchildren, five daughters and three sons took part in the celebration of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Captain and Mrs. Samuel G. Whitmarsh of Braintree. The couple were married in Weymouth June 20, 1869, by the Rev. Gideon Cole of the Baptist Church of that place.

All through their married life the couple lived in the Fall house, which was built in 1804, when toll was collected for passing over the Quincy bridge. Captain Whitmarsh was toll collector until the practice was abolished twenty-five years ago. Since that time he has been engaged in the painting business.

LIEUTENANT COLE MADE INSTRUCTOR

Lieutenant Robert D. Cole has been appointed instructor of French in the Huntington School. Lieutenant Cole was for six years an instructor at the William Penn Charter School of Philadelphia. He is a graduate of Bowdoin and studied in the graduate school of the University of Pennsylvania. While at Bowdoin he was captain of the track team. Lieutenant Cole is now stationed at Sorbonne University, France, having been assigned there for graduate work by the Educational Department of the army.

JUSTICE BRANDEIS ARRIVES IN LONDON

London, June 21.—Judges Brandeis, Scudder, Harvey and Farmer have arrived at Plymouth on the Mauretania. Dublin dispatches assert that the four American jurists plan to investigate the Irish situation.

Demand Musicians Be Kept from U. S. as Laborers

Atlantic City, N. J., June 21.—A musician is a laborer, not an artist.

This decision was officially made here by the American Federation of Labor, and it backed up its decision by asking the Department of Commerce to include musicians under the foreign contract labor law, excluding them from this country in order to protect American musical laborers. A strict application of this rule, some stated, would bar Paderewski and other famous foreign "musical laborers."

GIRL CASHIER IS BARNEY CASE WITNESS

ing, when they dined together at the Wellington Cafe on Columbus avenue. During the meal, she said, a man came into the restaurant and spoke to Barney, who promptly left the place. A short time later Mrs. O'Brien also left.

"INSTRUCTIONS FOR MAY."

The witness said that she had remained in the cafe alone for some time after Mrs. O'Brien had left, going later to a fruit store at Columbus and Massachusetts avenues. While she was in the store, she said, Marion O'Brien came in and the two joined Barney and another man on Massachusetts avenue.

"Have you told May what to say?" Barney asked Mrs. O'Brien, according to the witness.

"Yes, I've told her everything," Marion replied, according to the witness.

The croxx-examination of Miss Ingalls by Attorney Juggins was concerned largely with the interview the police had with Miss Ingalls on the morning of February 15.

"Did anybody slap you while you were talking with the police?" asked Mr. Juggins.

"No," declared the witness.

"Did Sergeant Anderson shake his fist at you? Did anybody shake you up?"

"No."

Q.—You had sent for William Hannahan, the assistant manager of the theatre, hadn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why? A.—Because I knew Mr. Hannahan and would feel better to have somebody there that I knew.

Q.—Didn't you throw your arms around Mr. Hannahan and cry and act hysterically when he arrived at the station? A.—I did not.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I said, "O, Billy, I'm so glad you came."

Mr. Juggins was unable to shake Miss Ingalls' insistence that the police had not treated her abusively at any time. She admitted, however, that she had been told that she would be locked up unless she told the truth. She thereupon amended her story in several particulars, she said.

FOUND DEININGER SLAIN.

Although the trial has been under way for three days, it was not until today that the Commonwealth moved to establish the corpus delicti. As a result a trial for murder has been proceeding without anybody proven to be dead.

John Keating, a Chelsea policeman, said that he had reached the scene of the shooting at 8:40 o'clock that night. Near the door of the garage, lying prone, was the body of Deininger. Lifting up the officer's coat, he saw the butt of his service revolver protruding from its holster in the policeman's hip pocket.

"I turned him over on his back and found that he was dead," said the witness.

George Cass, chauffeur in the Chelsea police department, testified that he had examined the body with Keating and had helped him turn it over. He said that Officer McKenzie, who Keating had said helped him tourn over the body, was not present at the time.

Dr. Henry E. Davis of the Frost Hospital said that the body of the murdered patrolman had been taken to the hospital at 9 o'clock in the evening. Deininger had been dead for some time, he found. There was a wound in the officer's right breast. The doctor said that Deininger's revolver was still in its place in the holster when the body was brought to the hospital.

WOMAN IDENTIFIES DILLON.

Angelina Zola, proprietor of a store at Woodlawn and Washington avenues, Chelsea, testified that at 1:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Feb. 13 a man she identified in court as the defendant, Dillon, entered her store, purchased some cigars and did some telephoning.

She said that she had seen Dillon in the neighborhood on several previous occasions.

NAMES FORMER STEEL HEAD IN LOVE SUIT

Baltimore, Md., June 21.—Naming as an alienator of his wife's affections J. M. Jones, former general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Company at Sparrow's Point and now president of the new Eastern Rolling Mills Company, George C. Riordan has started suit in the Superior Court for $50,000 damages.

Riordan alleges that, although he has on numerous occasions remonstrated with Jones and the defendant has promised to cease his attentions to Mrs. Riordan, Jones actually continued to meet her secretly.

LEWIS CHARGES "HONEY" WAS KIDNAPED

Colored Man Who Sought White Bride Is Freed on Bail at Ayer

Ayer, June 21.—Charging that his colored client, Arthur Garfield (Honey) Hazzard, champion champion wood sawer of this town, was kidnapped from New Hampshire when he attempted to marry Miss Mabel Puffer, wealthy white woman and elocutionist of Ayer, former Assistant United States Attorney General William H. Lewis appeared in the District Court here today. Lewis demanded an immediate hearing or the dismissal of the charge that Miss Puffer was insane to agree to a black and white marriage.

NAME TWO ALIENISTS.

An alienist commission composed of Dr. Frank S. Bulkeley and Herbert B. Priest of Ayer was appointed after a long court wrangle in which the courtroom was jammed to decide if the white woman may marry the colored man of her choice.

Attorney Lewis contended that when his client "Honey" Hazzard and Miss Puffer were arrested yesterday in Concord, N. H., charged with a statutory offence, and removed from the State of New Hampshire to the State of Massachusetts, a violation of the bill of rights of the constitution of the United States had been committed. Judge Atwood agreed to the appointment of two examiners into the mental condition of the woman who had pledged her hand and heart to a man not of her own race.

Hazzard was released on $300 bail and the case against him continued for a week. Never in the history of the little town of Ayer has as much interest been centered in a court hearing of any kind as today.

WOMAN NOT IN COURT.

"Honey" Hazzard was accompanied to the courtroom by his mother, sister and brother. Miss Mabel Puffer, the modern Desdemona, as one of the local police officers described her, was not in court, but was in custody of the local police matron.

The Hazzard family occupied a front seat in the courtroom and when the unusual case was called Hazzard stepped briskly into the prisoner's pen as if willing and anxious to make a white woman his wife. The complaint was read to the former choresman, and his attorney immediately moved for a dismissal of the charge of a statutory offence against Hazzard and Miss Puffer.

PRETTY BLONDE IS SOUGHT AS AUTO THIEF

Miss Mary Daley of Providence, alias Ruth Davis, described as very charming as to face and manner, is being sought by the police of Franklin in connection with the disappearance of a Court street business man's automobile. A warrant has been sworn out for her arrest.

The machine, owned by Shaban Ariff, was purchased at a garage in Franklin upon the recommendation of the girl. She often borrowed the car, he states, and when she requested the machine to spend a week-end at Keene, N. H., he allowed her to use it.

Ariff thought nothing strange of the incident, he declared, until a week passed and the automobile had not been returned. Then he notified the Franklin police and also called in operators of a detective bureau. While it is thought that the car is still in New England all attempts to locate it have been unsuccessful. Ariff told the police that he has seen the girl driving another man around in the Ariff car.

The police describe Miss Daley as blonde, twenty years old.

ANGELL PAINTINGS AT THE ART MUSEUM

The Henry C. and Martha B. Angell collection of paintings has been placed on exhibition at the Museum of Fine Arts in the Corridor of Drawings, where it will remain through July. The paintings consist mainly of French work of the middle nineteenth century, and furnish another proof of the influence of William Morris Hunt on the development of an interest in art in Boston. Dr. Angell was especially interested in paintings by Corot, represented by nine examples from different periods, and by Daubigny, represented by five examples.

AUTO PLUNGES 30 FEET, TYING UP RAILROAD

By jumping, Kiernan Lowry of No. 190 Prospect street, Cambridge, saved himself from death when the four-ton truck he was operating crashed through the railing of the railroad bridge which spans the Boston & Maine tracks, a short distance from the Union square station, Somerville, and landed on the tracks thirty feet below.

The truck was badly damaged and the load of empty barrels which he was taking from Cambridge was scattered along the tracks, tying up the east and west-bound trains over an hour. Lowry said that he turned to one side to avoid hitting another car and in doing so went too far over.

SUITS FOR $26,000 FOLLOW AUTO CRASH

As the result of an automobile collision on West Central street, Natick, on December 23, 1918, four suits have been filed against Herbert M. Hazleton of Marlboro.

Molly Hurley of Lenox asks $5,000, Pauline Hurley of Lenox $1,000, Catherine A. Hickey of Framingham $15,000 and Patrick E. Hickey of Framingham $5,000.

WIFE DECLARES WEALTHY HUSBAND INFATUATED WITH HER SISTER

HE DENIES CHARGES IN SUIT

Mrs. Mildred Ehrgott of New York Seeks Separation From Real Estate Dealer

New York, June 21.—"For three years my husband has been infatuated with my sister."

This is the charge preferred against George M. Ehrgott, a wealthy real estate dealer, in papers filed in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Mildred Ball Ehrgott, his wife, is suing for a separation. She says her sister's husband and her mother called her atention to Ehrgott's attentions to her sister. She remonstrated with Ehrgott, but without avail. She says he supplied her with information with which he told her she could get a divorce.

Mrs. Ehrgott's sister is Mrs. Edith E. Moss of No. 142 West Ninety-sixth street. Mrs. Ehrgott says her husband always bought gifts in duplicate and presented one to her and one to his sister-in-law.

SISTER HAD HIS PICTURE.

"My sister kept my husband's picture on her bureau at all times," said Mrs. Ehrgott.

Ehrgott denies his wife's allegations. He said he was not in love with his sister-in-law and that there was no reason why she should make such a charge except her jealousy. His mother said the same.

To show that he was in love with his wife Ehrgott submitted letters which he had written her since their separation.

In one the defendant wrote:

"Dearie, I do miss you very greatly, a thousand and one large and small ways. It is very desolate without you, and for me another does not fill the bill."

On his wife's birthday Ehrgott sent her this poem:

"I'd rather hear the laugh of you
Than all the birds that sing;
I'd rather see the smile of you
Than almost anything;
I'd rather clasp the hand of you
Than all else I might do.
If I could live just where I'd like
'Twould be somewhere near you."

HE DENIES THE CHARGE.

Mr. Ehrgott said:

"My wife knows that I never made love to her sister. Something did happen a year after our marriage, but it was with another woman and not my wife's sister. She very recently obtained information about this affair and left my home.

"It is true that I wrote the letters mentioned, but that was two years or more ago. I have no wish for Mrs. Ehrgott to come back, and when this action comes to trial in the Fall I will show up some mighty startling things."

FOUR ARE INJURED IN 30-FOOT AUTO PLUNGE

Thompsonville, Conn., June 21.—Fred F. Flack, said to be a theatrical manager; his wife, Grace, an actress, and Chester Read, an aviator recently returned from abroad, all of Bayside, N. J., and Mrs. Eva M. Mann and her ten-year-old daughter Dorothy of Dorchester, Mass., narrowly escaped death when their automobile, driven by Mrs. Flack, skidded on Enfield street, left the road and plunged off a ledge a distance of thirty feet, landing in a brook.

Mr. Read suffered a compound fracture of the arm and bruises on the left leg, Fleck, a fracture of the right collarbone, and both Mrs. Flack and Mrs. Mann were badly cut and bruised, the girl being uninjured.

Read was removed to a hospital in Springfield, Mass. The parties were on the way from Dorchester to Bayside.

2 LEAVE NEW YORK TO JOIN THE IRISH ENVOYS

New York, June 21. — Reinforcements for the Irish-American delegation at Paris which now consists of ex-Governor Dunne and Frank P. Walsh are on the high seas today aboard the French liner, Espagne.

John A. Murphy of Buffalo goes as an additional member of the commission and L. S. Trigg, who served under Walsh on the National War Labor Board, as assistant secretary to the commission.

Headquarters of the Friends of Irish Freedom, in making the announcement, said Walsh and Dunne had cabled that they be sent assistance.

HOSE WAGON AND AUTO IN COLLISION

A number of lives were endangered when the hose wagon of Engine 6 collided with an auto of the Brook-Smith Company, while bound for a $50 fire in the North End. The blaze was on the first floor of the five-story stone building, No. 101 North street, occupied by A. J. Cunningham Company. The hose wagon bumped into the rear of the auto, which was operated by Frank Lambert of No. 1 Newport road, Cambridge. Lambert and the firemen escaped injury, but the auto was badly damaged, and the pole and whiffletree of the hose wagon were broken.

By International News Service.

Washington, June 21.—The White House was placed at the disposal of the State Department and Vice-President Marshall for any entertainments in honor of President-elect Pessoa of Brazil on his arrival in Washington.

President Wilson in a cablegram to Secretary Tumulty today directed him to extend this courtesy in honor of the distinguished visitor and to "Please extend to the President-elect of Brazil my great gratification that the Imperator was able to render the assistance at sea which it did when the French cruiser broke down."

M. Pessoa and his party were transferred to the Imperator in mid-ocean when the engines of the Joan d'Arc, upon which they were passengers, became disabled.

AGED WOMAN DENIES SHE PUT GLASS IN PIE

Quincy Court Continues Case of Mrs. Flora L. Marble, Eighty-Five

Mrs. Flora L. Marble, eighty-five, of South Braintree pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Quincy District Court on a charge of assault upon Natalie Serra, nine, the child of a neighbor. The aged woman is accused of having put glass in a pie which she gave the Serra girl for distribution among the children of the neighborhood.

Mrs. Marble had to be assisted to the witness stand by a court attendant. She is very deaf and had great difficulty in comprehending Judge Avery when he asked her to state her plea.

Judge Avery, after looking from the face of the aged woman on the stand to that of six-year-old Rosie Serra, who was to be a witness, commented upon the peculiarity of the situation.

HER CASE IS CONTINUED.

"The defendant is so old and the witnesses are so young that the court may have difficulty in getting at the facts of the case," he said. "I shall continue this case until July 7. In the meantime the probation officer of this court will make a thorough investigation of the case and report to the court at that time." Mrs. Marble was given her liberty on her own recognizance.

Mrs. Marble, the police say, has reported to them on several occasions that the children in the neighborhood of her home at No. 150 Pond street annoyed her and her aged husband. The latter, who was in court today, announced as he tottered out of the courtroom that he would have a sign put up on his premises immediately warning away all trespassers.

CUT BY GLASS IN PIE.

More than a dozen pieces of glass, varying in size, were found in the pumpkin pie Mrs. Marble is alleged to have given the Serra child. The little girl took the pie to her home, where it was cut by her mother.

The fact that it contained glass was not learned until Natalie bit into the piece which her mother had given her. Natalie's little sister, Rosie, and Frances Lauria, nine, had not touched their share of the pie when Mrs. Serra found the glass.

Bela Kun Angry When Asked About Costly Gowns of Wife

Exclusive Cable to Universal Service and London Daily Express.

Budapest, June 21.—"If you are finally invited to attend the Peace Congress what will be the attitude of the Soviet government?" was asked of Bela Kun, Soviet Foreign Minister of Hungary, over the telephone.

"I shall accept with pleasure any invitation, although I do not expect the results to calm our people," he answered. "However, personal negotiations will bring quicker peace than any other steps."

"How about your wife's enormous expenditure for gowns on her recent shopping trip in Vienna?" was the next question.

Bela Kun slammed down the receiver.

FIND LONE TENANT DEAD IN HIS ROOM

Missing since June 14, Ferdinand Peneazcher, fifty-five, was found dead at No. 397 West Fourth street, South Boston. He occupied a room on the third floor of the house. Save for him the house was empty. Little is known of him in the neighborhood, except that he was reputed to drink very heavily.

Mary Shea of No. 28 Monument avenue, who owns the house, visited it. Coming to Peneazcher's room she found the door locked. Neighbors told her they had not seen him since June 14. Patrolman Elder of Station 6 was notified, and broke open the door.

RUNNING TO PLAY, IS KILLED BY AUTO

Running across the street in front of an automobile cost seven-year-old Francis Crowley of No. 9 Shepherd avenue, Brighton, his life. The child, who lived with his uncle, Patrick Crowley, was playing in front of No. 818 Huntington avenue. Playmates across the street called him, and without noticing the automobile of John W. Reider, of No. 8 Norway street, which was approaching, the child started to run across the street. When he reached the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital Dr. Perkins pronounced him dead.

LYNN ANARCHIST EDITOR AWAITS DEPORTATION

New York, June 21.—Eleven self-styled "philosophical anarchists" have arrived at Ellis Island from Boston and are awaiting deportation to their native countries.

Lugi Galicanni, editor of a publication at Lynn, Mass., will be sent to Italy.

NEARLY MILLION HOMES SHORT IN U. S.

Congress Considers Plan for Federal Building Loan Banks as Relief

By International News Service.

Washington, June 21.—With the United States short nearly a million homes, bills are pending in the Senate and House, having for their purpose a plan to make more liquid the assets of the building and loan associations of the country, that the money may be loaned more freely to home builders.

The Department of Labor, which is behind the plan, has prepared a federal building loan bill, which was presented to the House by Representative Nolan of California. This bill has the endorsement of the United States League of Building and Loan associations. Under it the government is required to supervise, but not to supply any capital or to purchase any bonds. The President, on the recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury, is to appoint a superintendent of federal building loan banks.

The United States would be divided into eleven districts. Ten or more building associations with combined assets of at least $5,000,000 may combine to organize the Federal building loan bank of the district, each bank to have a minimum capital stock of $100,000. The banks will be governed by a board of directors elected by the members associations.

When a member building association has applications for loans in excess of its available funds, it may obtain additional funds by filing with the district bank mortgages which it has on hand. Against these mortgages, the bank may issue bonds up to 80 per cent. of their value, sell the bonds on the market and turn over the proceeds to the applicant building association, the borrowing association will repay the funds borrowed in annual payments, which may run as long as twenty years, paying interest at the rate of the bonds, but not exceeding 4½ per cent and a commission not exceeding half of 1 per cent. per annum.

MEDFORD WOMAN SUES "L" FOR $3,000

The Boston Elevated has been sued for $3,000 by Margaret A. Conway of Medford. She alleges that on August 12, 1917, while boarding a car in Medford she was injured owing to the sudden starting of the car.

'FINGER PRINTS OF DR. WILKINS ON HAMMER'

Detective Burns Says the Physician Gave Him Different Versions of the Crime

New York, June 21.—William J. Burns, chief of a detective agency, told the jury in the Mineola Court why he believed Dr. Walter K. Wilkins killed his wife. After the detective analyzed part of the evidence he was heckled by the defence, which resulted in a rancorous dispute that brought out echoes of the Frank and Western land fraud cases.

Burns testified to two conversations with Dr. Wilkins in which he said the physician gave somewhat different versions of the murder. The detective recalled telling the doctor, after the latter said the burglar's blow left no mark on his head:

"He must have hit you with something very soft."

To which, he said, the physician replied:

"Probably it was his fist."

BURNS TELLS OF TALKS.

The detective said he told Dr. Wilkins it was strange that the burglars, armed with hammer, pistol and lead pipe, did not injure him but instead battered his wife to death, to which the doctor answered:

"Yes, it is strange, but that's the fact."

The detective said he asked if the doctor knew why burglars wrapped the hammer in newspaper, and Dr. Wilkins said he could not imagine, which led to the detective's comment that if the paper could be traced the mystery would be solved.

The detective testified that he said to the doctor:

"I think you have a great deal of explaining to do in this case."

Dr. Wilkins became very angry, the witness testified, and retorted:

"I am a physician and if I wanted to kill my wife there are other ways."

Burns said he replied that there were other ways, but it would have been foolish for him to have tried it subtly.

DEFENCE ATTACKS BURNS.

Charles N. Wysong, counsel for the defence, tried to discredit Burns by showing that his agency was under investigation in this State, that the chief had been nearly lynched in Georgia, and that a man he had convicted in the Oregon land frauds had been pardoned. Burns retorted:

"Yes, I was nearly lynched for proving conclusively that a negro named Conley killed that little girl, but they lynched Leo Frank for it.

"In Oregon I worked under Francis Heney, and the man we convicted, Jones, found it cost him $150,000 to get a pardon from President Taft, who was deceived just as he was deceived in the Charles Morse case. The money was paid to a bunch of land crooks. I tried to tell Taft about it, and he referred me to Wickersham, who had made the recommendation for pardon, but Wickersham, who was then attorney-general, told me I'd have to take it up with the new administration."

DETECTIVE MENTIONS MORGAN.

Burns declared that the New York investigation of his office was inspired by a business rival.

When asked if he had not been arrested, the witness said:

"That was the result of an investigation of J. P. Morgan's office when the Germans were getting cablegrams sent here by French and English interests. The District Attorney prosecuted me instead of the thieves, and I was fined, but the higher courts ruled that I'd committed no crime."

The detective said he was charging Nassau County $50 daily for his personal services, and that his agency bill was $2,079 for two months.

Patrolman N. T. Cocks of Manhattan testified that in May, 1918, he described to Dr. Wilkins how a burglar had broken into a haberdasher's and attacked the owner with a machinist's hammer wrapped in a newspaper.

Finger print experts testified the prints on the hammer and lead pipe used on Mrs. Wilkins were the physician's prints. The defence admitted this, explaining he had picked up the weapons later. The expert testimony was that if he had merely picked the hammer up the prints would have been light, instead of which they showed a tight clasp had been held on the handle.

Carman Plant, county detective, told of finding the doctor's watch in a bloody napkin under the bed, and string similar to that used on the hammer in the cellar. District Attorney Weeks will finish the prosecution's evidence Monday. Dr. Wilkins will take the stand about the second day.

CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY SEEKS PRESIDENT HERE

Four Eastern men, all professors connected with Boston, Harvard and Columbia Universities, are being considered as president of the University of California, in California, to succeed Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler.

Under consideration are Professor Charles H. Haskins of Harvard, Professor James Geddis, Jr., of Boston University, Professor Edwin F. Gay of Harvard and Professor A. V. Williams Jackson of Columbia University.

The universities of Michigan and Wisconsin are considering Professor [illegible] as president, and Professor Haskin's name is said to be in the list from which the University of Pennsylvania is to select its head.

FORMER SOLDIER HELD FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

Peter La Bours, thirty-two, formerly a soldier in E Company, 30th U. S. Infantry, was arraigned in court this morning on the charge of assaulting an eleven-year-old girl in an alleyway off Tremont street, near Dover. La Bours, who was discharged from the service on May 22, was arrested by Patrolman M. J. Quilty.

SUSPECT 'BABY DOLL' HAS A RECORD

Police Think She Was in Prison for Throwing Vitriol at Former Husband

That instead of an innocent child-like "Baby Doll" Mrs. Harry Baker, who with her husband is held for the murder of Dwight P. Chapman, an aged resident of Westboro, is really a very sophisticated young woman, previously married, and with a prison record, is the belief of investigators working on the case.

The authorities say they expect to find the "Baby Doll" is none other than Elnora Heise, who in May, 1916, was sentenced to the Milwaukee State prison at Wampum, for throwing vitriol on the man then known as her husband.

At the time of the arrest of the Heise woman she told the police that she attacked her husband for driving her to the streets to earn money which he spent on other women. She was paroled from prison last year, and subsequently worked in a hotel in Wampum.

Baker, so the police claim, has told them that his wife's name was Elnora Heise, and that they were married a year ago in Wisconsin. Reports reaching investigators from Wisconsin state that the Heise woman married a man named Harry Baker in Kenosha, Wis.

The authorities also claim that Baker has a previous police record.

LYNN CHURCH ORDERED TO REINSTATE NEWMAN

The expulsion of Charles H. Newman from the Hudson street Baptist Church, Lynn, was ruled to have been illegal and not in conformity with the constitution, standing rules and by-laws of the association by Judge Brown of the Superior Court at Salem, who confirmed the finding of Henry T. Loomis, master.

In his decree Judge Brown orders the defendants to expunge from the records all references to the dropping of the name of the complainant from membership, orders them to reinstate him forthwith and to call a special meeting for that purpose. He also grants a permanent injunction against proceeding against the complainant to oust him from membership, other than for just cause after due proceedings under the rules and by-laws then in force. The defendants are assessed the costs, $41.

URGE SURVEY TO CLEAR MERRIMACK RIVER

Lawrence, June 21.—It is announced here that an effort will be made by Congressmen Rogers, Phelan and Lufkin, representing districts in the Merrimack valley, to have a conference with General Black, head of the army engineering department, and request him to appoint one of the most skilled engineers in his department to make a survey of the Merrimack river and submit a report on the cost and advisability of pushing forward the project of making the river navigable from Lowell to the sea.

INSIST PRESIDENT WILL TOUR COUNTRY

Washington, June 21.—Rumors that President Wilson, in the event of the failure of the Knox resolution to come to a vote, would abandon his plans for a "swing around the circle" were discounted by White House officials today. The President is determined to render direct to the American people an account of his stewardship, it was stated, and there has been no change in his plans for a speaking tour taking in all the principal cities of the country. The tentative itinerary will be made public, according to present arrangements, the day the President sails for home.

GIVE EDWARD BERG A WELCOME HOME

More than 100 friends and relatives of Edward Berg, who recently returned from eleven months' service overseas, tendered him a welcome at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Berg, No. 158 Cross street, Somerville. Entertainment was provided by an orchestra; solos were rendered by Miss Mary Whitehead, Edward Donovan and Malcolm McPhee and selections by a trio composed of Gertrude Healey, Edward Berg and James Havener.

STEAL TAXI AND ROLL FROM DRIVER

His taxi and $12 were stolen from William Lipson, a cab driver of Centennial avenue, Revere, by two passengers on the Fitchburg railroad bridge in West Somerville. Early today the police of Station 2, East Cambridge, to whom Lipson reported the affair, found the car on Cambridge street. The passengers had engaged Lipson to carry them to Somerville and one of them covered the taxi driver with a pistol during the robbery.

MEAT CLERKS DEMAND 6 O'CLOCK CLOSING

North Adams, June 21.—Clerks in local stores are making a determined effort to have grocery stores and meat markets close at 6 o'clock every evening. As part of their efforts the clerks have sent a letter to the merchants stating that those who refuse to comply with the request will have their names placed upon an "unfavorable list of merchants" whom the clerks will not patronize.

HOLD VERMONT MAN IN AUTO LICENSE CASE

North Adams, June 21.—Following an auto collision, Frank Armstrong of North Pownal, Vt., appeared before the local court on a charge of operating an automobile without a license. He pleaded not guilty and, with surety fixed at $50, the case was continued. Armstrong had a Vermont license, but it is said did not possess a Massachusetts license.

26th Hero With 47 Wounds Returns to Winchendon

Winchendon, June 21.—William [illegible], the most-wounded man in the 26th Division, has arrived home here and is discharged. He bears forty-seven wounds. He was three times sent to the hospital and as many times returned to the front line trenches. Among the souvenirs he carries are a silver [illegible], artificial kneecap, twelve pieces of hand grenade imbedded in his right shoulder and a silver [illegible] in the left instep.

BAY STATE MEN DEFY LEADER, MAY QUIT

Many Locals in Carmen's Union Insist on Walking Out as Planned

Although members of the conference board of the Bay State Street Railway carmen's organization were prevailed upon to postpone the general strike on that system, called for tomorrow, the delegates expressed the fear that they would not be able to keep the men from striking. The opinion was that in some places, including Haverhill, the men may walk out today.

The delegates, following a three-hours' session at the Quincy House with President W. D. Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees, not only agreed to postpone the general walkout planned for tomorrow morning, but also to urge the strikers in Lawrence, Lowell and Woburn to return to work pending an adjustment.

CANNOT HOLD ALL MEN.

If the delegates succeed in convincing their constituents that the advice of President Mahon should be followed there will be no strike. But many of the delegates frankly admitted that they did not think their powers of persuasion were great enough to induce the men to call off the proposed strike.

At the long conference, John H. Reardon, a member of the executive board of the international organization, joined with President Mahon in urging the men to postpone the strike.

WILL TRY ARBITRATION.

President Mahon told the delegates that he would take up the issues at stake in the regular way with the company, and that efforts will be made to save the situation by arbitration. He asked that all men now on strike be urged to return to work at once, and that men who have not struck be urged to remain at work.

The delegates pledged themselves to communicate this advice to their respective locals, and to try and get the strikers back to work.

HERO CANDIDATE FOR NORTHAMPTON OFFICE

Northampton, June 21.—With the announcement by District Attorney John H. Schoonmaker of Ware that he would not be a candidate for re-election in the Hampshire-Franklin district at the next election, Major Thomas J. Hammond of this city, formerly of the 104th Infantry, announces that he has taken out nomination papers for the office.

Major Hammond went overseas as captain of I company, 104th Infantry, and was later promoted to his present rank. He is city solicitor of Northampton.

BANK MEN ELECT PARKMAN PRESIDENT

The Savings Banks' Association of Massachusetts elected Henry Parkman of the Provident Institution for Savings, president at a meeting at the Boston City Club. Other officers chosen were: Vice-president, William L. Adam, Pittsfield; treasurer, Wilmot R. Evans, Boston Five Cents Savings Bank; secretary, Carl M. Spencer, Home Savings Bank, Boston. Addresses were delivered by Augustus L. Thorndike, bank commissioner of Massachusetts, and Samuel H. Beach, president of the Rome Savings Bank, Rome, N. Y.

CAR MEN SCATTER WHEN DRUNKS FLOURISH GUNS

A reproduction of life in a frontier town of the early days was given in the vicinity of the Hancock street car barns of the Bay State Railway in Quincy when five drunks, two of whom flourished pistols, threatened to "clean up" the city. Everyone in sight scattered for cover, but the men with the pistols did not shoot. A dozen suspects have been rounded up by the Quincy police in their search for the party.

GIRL'S WISH TO WED OLD MAN COMES TRUE

New York, June 21.—"All my life I have wanted to marry a [illegible] man. I have never cared for young men and now my dream has come true. I am the happiest girl alive."

So declared twenty-year-old Mrs. Bessie [illegible] Brown following her marriage to Charles Turner Brown, sixty-year-old patent lawyer of Chicago.

BATH IRON WORKERS RETURN TO WORK

Bath, Me., June 21.—Their demands adjusted, the iron workers of the Texas Shipbuilding Company have returned to work, ending their strike. The adjustment was made by a committee of employes dealing direct with the officials of the company, a plan which will be followed hereafter, it was stated.

BIG BILL DEVERY, FAMOUS POLICE CHIEF, DEAD

Falls to Floor, a Heart Disease Victim, During Thunder Storm

New York, June 21.—The passing of William S. ("Big Bill") Devery, "the best chief of police New York ever had," who expired at his home in Far Rockaway at the height of a thunderstorm, rounds the career of one of the most picturesque figures who ever dominated the force of Gotham.

From the time when his appointment in 1898 by Mayor Van Wyck made Devery the political and social storm centre he was never out of the limelight. Richard Croker made the recommendation which lifted Devery out of the ranks of the uniformed policemen and placed him in command of the department.

The reform element sought to force Devery out of the job. The Jeerlade called harmlessly off "Big Bill's" back, and he remarked contemptuously: "These ducks think a cop cannot command cops. I'll show 'em."

FLED BEFORE "BIG BILL."

The showdown occurred during a strike of B. R. T. employes, when Chief Devery, in opposition to the strikers, declared the cars of New York would not be stopped. The strikers said that not one car would move. Placing himself at the head of a small squad of men, "Big Bill" led them against the rioters. After a few head had been "cracked" the strikers fled, and traffic was quickly resumed. The State militia found their work had been done for them when they arrived.

During his twenty-five years on the police force Devery made an impression on New Yorkers which they will not soon forget. He was thrown out of office in 1901 by the Legislature, and his successor, Chief Murphy, appointed him his deputy.

Devery was one of the first police heads to use the "velvet hand" on red flag meetings. Though all but ordered to disperse a meeting in Washington square he refused. The speakers, who had come expecting to be arrested, were surrounded by an immense crowd, which dwindled to a handful as the police made no effort to prevent the meeting. Afterwards Devery said:

"THE VELVET HAND."

"If I'd dispersed them there would have been some broken heads and maybe some lives lost. Give 'em the velvet hand and they'll talk their heads off and quit."

His death at the height of a storm was a fitting climax to the stormy career of the big fellow, whose appearance was typical of the New York policeman of his day—big and muscular. He fell to the floor in his home after a tremendous thunderclap and there his wife and daughter found him.

Devery mixed in business and politics. He was successful in the former, but he failed to become the leader of the Old Ninth district in the contest against two Tammany men, Frank J. Goodwin and John C. Sheehan. He always insisted that he was counted out.

MADE A FORTUNE.

He made a fortune in real estate at Far Rockaway, formed a burglar alarm company that was successful and recently embarked in the cotton selling business with profit. A pension granted him by the Legislature was vetoed by Mayor Gaynor. He had a beautiful home close to the residence of Charles E. Hughes in West End avenue and a summer home at the seaside that was the haunt of his old cronies.

The phrase "touchin' on an' appertainin' to," which has been a stock line for humorists for years, is credited to "Big Bill." Other Deveryisms which have made him famous are:

SOME DEVERYISMS.

"Gaynor talks about a thief catching a thief. What does he know about the police business? When I was a policeman I knew every crook who visited or headed this town. And he knew I knew him. A lot of a nightstick and he flew. The city was never so clean as when I was chief. You weren't held up by painted fairies everywhere as you are under Gaynor."

"Whenever you hear a man raisin' a howl about how rotten the New York police force is, watch him—he's tryin' to grab something."

"You can't learn police in college and in no school but experience. If you try you get nothin' but the sore heart."

"I never was in politics, I was just an old scalawag."

"You can't make too many arrests provided you've got any suspicion that the fellow you're arrestin' ain't on the square. You can tell a crook by the company he keeps. There were only three hold-ups in my time."

"I never loved anything so much as the 'old pump' in Twenty-eighth street. I used to visit it every night."

"I got tired of seein' dogs wear sealskin coats on West End avenue. I am always the same old plain Bill Devery."

"Where did I get my money? A good fairy gave me a tip on mining stock, which jumped from twelve cents to a hundred dollars a share."

LIEUT. "BILL" DROHAN IS FAILING SLOWLY

There is little chance for the recovery of Lieut. William L. Drohan of the the 26th Division from the shock he suffered on Memorial Day last. Two more shocks since then have caused the former South Boston court officer to lose his strength and P. H. Graham, at whose home the war veteran has been confined, states his doubts of the lieutenant ever being able to leave his bed.

GEN EDWARDS TO GIVE $300 GIFT TO SOLDIERS

Pays Dainty Tribute to Professional Women for Charm and Generosity

In acknowledging a gift of $200 from the Professional Women's Club, General Clarence R. Edwards of the Department of the Northeast, says that the money will be used to tide over distressed soldiers and their families. The check to half the proceeds of a play given by the club. In his letter of acknowledgment to Mrs. Marie D. Fuelten, president of the club, General Edwards pays a charming tribute to the members of the organization.

The letter follows:

"My Dear Madam:

"Allow me to acknowledge with thanks and appreciation your presentation of the check for $200, which are the fifty-fifty proceeds of the play that your club gave on the day of the review of the 26th Division at Ayer, at which time all the world and his wife were present, an unfortunate counter-attraction.

"You graciously told me that the club which you represent has turned this money over to me to be used for any purpose to which my pleasure will dictate.

"It is a characteristically generous action of your club and I accept the gift with much gratification and pleasure to say to you that I can constantly comes to my notice or that of my staff occasions where a little money will tide over distress to soldiers and their families.

"I recall with much pleasure the occasion on which your club honored me by making me their guest and I was able to meet its members. What impressed me more than anything else in the club, composed of women successful in earning their own livelihood, many of them with distinguished accomplishments, was that none of them appeared to me to have surrendered any of the femininity that is the charm of womanhood. Therefore count me one of your humble champions for the future and now under personal obligation to each and every one of you. Faithfully yours,

"C. R. EDWARDS."

STRIKE MAY CUT OFF PROVIDENCE GAS

Providence, June 21.—Strike-breakers at $19 per day are conveyed about in limousines, according to the striking gas-fitting employees of the Providence Gas Company, who stopped work when an efficiency expert ordered the men to eat their dinners on the streets with the horses and carry galvanized iron tool kits instead of dinner pails, according to the grievances filed with the union. The strikers threaten to tie up the consumption of gas in the city. American Federation of Labor officers have indorsed the strikers. A committee of strikers will try and effect a settlement with company officials Monday.

SERVICE CLUB HAS LAST "GET TOGETHER"

A War Camp Community Service carnival took place today at the Jamaica Plain Athletic Association. It was the last get-together meeting of this service club on a large scale of the men and women of the various organizations co-operating with the War Camp Community Service during the past year.

Free transportation to all ticket holders was given by automobiles from Brookline Village. The program included all sports, games, luncheon, music, dancing and vaudeville.

WALTHAM LAUNDRY SUED FOR $10,000

The Waltham Laundry Company has been sued for $10,000 by Edward Fitzpatrick, Jr., of Waltham, a minor, who sues through his father, Edward Fitzpatrick. He alleges that on December 12, 1918, while walking on Lexington street, Waltham, he was struck by an automobile owned by the company and was severely injured. Edward Fitzpatrick, the father, sues the company for $5,000 for the loss of his son's services and medical expenses.

MILFORD OPERATIVE CUT DURING ROW

Milford, June 21.—Edward O'Rourke, thirty, employed in Bellingham Woolen Mills, is nursing a gashed head as the result of being hit with some blunt instrument by Michael Mordore, he claims, while at work in the shop following an argument. Mordore ran from the factory without hat or coat and has not been seen since.

'Kidnaped Boy Has Movie Thrills on Trip to School

Sidney Paul Brooks, the twelve-year-old Arlington Heights boy who disappeared Wednesday morning and who walked into his home exhausted, tells the story of his whereabouts during his mysterious absence.

The boy said that he was late for school and jumped on a truck to make quicker time. The driver of the truck would not slow down when he had reached the Junior High School, where he is a pupil, and kept on going, telling the boy he was going back to Arlington soon.

Finally the automobile truck came to a stop in some place far from Arlington, the boy did not know where. Then for the first time the boy was told by the truck driver that he and not going to Boston until the next day.

The lad was picked up by a farmer, who kept him overnight and allowed him to ride into Boston the next day with him. The lad then hiked it from the city to his home in Arlington, arriving there late at night.

ROLLINS DEATH CASE AGAIN POSTPONED

Court Allows Defendant's New Counsel Time to Prepare Defence

The trial of Charles L. Rollins for murder on an indictment charging that on February 17, 1917, Rollins shot and killed Edward T. Foley, manager of a branch store of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company on Blue Hill avenue, which was assigned for trial on Monday next, has been postponed indefinitely.

The postponement was granted by Judge Sanderson because of the retirement of Herbert L. Baker as counsel for Rollins, and to enable Major Thomas L. Walsh, who has just come into the case, to prepare a defence.

Rollins has been in jail for more than two years, and District Attorney Pelletier has made several efforts to have the case disposed of. Mr. Baker each time succeeded in getting a continuance on the ground that an important witness for Rollins was with the American Expeditionary Force in France.

George E. Rollins, a brother of Charles, is now awaiting sentence for manslaughter in the Superior Court in connection with the death of a manager named Hall, a victim of the same tea company at Ashmont on the night of February 21, 1917. George is jointly indicted with Charles for the killing of Foley, but Charles alone will be tried on that indictment.

W. E. RUSSELL SCHOOL HONORS ITS HEROES

An inspiring tribute to graduates of the William E. Russell School on Columbia road, Dorchester, who are heroes of the World War, was given in the assembly hall of the school before the parents of the graduates, friends and present pupils of the school, at the dedication exercises and presentation of bronze service tablets in honor of the 175 pupils who served their country. Colonel Edward L. Logan was the speaker and the following program was given: Salute to the Flag and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the school; address of welcome, by the master, Murray H. Ballou; addresses were given by the following—Rev. Samuel Beans, of Channing Church; Rev. Francis Kenney, St. Margaret's Church and Augustine L. Reiffer, assistant superintendent of schools. Miss Lillian M. Loughlin sang a medley of patriotic songs. The exercises were in charge of Miss Katherine Garrity, assisted by Miss Ella Brannehein, Miss Josephine Hanley, Miss Julia J. Ford, Miss Josephine Martin and Mrs. Sarah E. McMahan.

THRIFT SERMONS IN ALL CHURCHES

Tomorrow is Thrift Sunday. Throughout New England and the rest of the country everywhere, each denomination will expound sermons carrying a message of "Save First—Spend Afterward." The day is set aside to aid in the National Thrift Campaign. A message from Carter Glass, secretary of the treasury, urging the continuation of habits of thrift established during the war, urging the purchase of War Savings and Thrift Stamps, will be read from the pulpits of America.

All auxiliary organizations including Christian Endeavor Societies, Epworth Leagues, and chapters of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and Philip and Young Men's Institutes, have also been asked to give attention to Thrift Sunday in their exercises.

UXBRIDGE STATE GUARD TO DISBAND

Uxbridge, June 21.—Captain Hugh D. McKenzie of Company L, M. S. G., has received orders to disband his company, and its discontinuance will probably occur next week when a two-year term of enlistment expires. The company, formed two years ago to take the place of the old National Guard, was incorporated into the regular army.

INDIANS TO AID WESTERLY OLD HOME FETE

Exercises Open Today With Services in Churches of Early Settlers

Westerly, June 21.—President Ellen F. Pendleton of Wellesley College, class of 1881 of the local high school, and Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of schools of Plainfield, N. J., will participate in the 250th anniversary and Old Home Week, which opened today with appropriate services in the Pawcatuck churches, where the early settlers attended.

In all the churches throughout the town and outlying hamlets services will be held. The Pawcatuck churches, two in number, have played a prominent part in the history of the town. The churches are said to be among the oldest in the State.

INDIANS TO TAKE PART.

President Pendleton is an interested member of the almuni which on Wednesday will give old time school day program. Commencement exercises, followed by a meeting of the alumni association, are looked upon as events and a special day was set apart for the meeting.

Indians will play an important part in the program and evening of early days when the Indians controlled the entire area about the present thriving town will be depicted in an historical pageant which will be given Friday under the direction of Miss Phillis Tanner, prominant as a director of historical pageants throughout New England.

BIG MERCHANTS' PARADE.

The old-time Indian fighter will not be neglected, and scions of families whose forefathers fought the redmen will again don the war clothes of their ancestors on this occasion. Relics of the early days, cherished for over two centuries, will be in evidence on Friday. The merchants' parade on Friday afternoon is also a feature, and over 150 floats will be in line.

Genera Chairman Arthur M. Cottrell says the efforts of all concerned have been well directed, and Westerly will have a great celebration. Thousands of former residents have signified their intention of participating in the festivities during the week.

BUILDING TRADES MEETING JUNE 25

The conference called by Mayor Peters between the representatives of the United Building Trades Council and the committee representing the Building Trades Employers' Association, in an endeavor to reach some basis for the settlement of several strikes now in effect in the building trades and at the same time to effect a permanent settlement between the trades and the employers, adjourned until next Wednesday, June 25, at 2:30 p. m., in the Municipal Chamber.

While nothing definite was decided upon, the Mayor felt that the two sides were more nearly on a common ground than at any other time, and he is optimistic of the result of the meeting next Wednesday.

CERTIFICATES FOR "JOB BACK" EMPLOYERS

Government certificates to all individual employers and corporations agreeing to take back all former employes who left to serve in the United States Army or Navy during the world war are being issued by Colonel Arthur Woods, Assistant Secretary of War. The certificates are neatly engraved and read that the employers have assured the War and Navy Departments that they will gladly re-employ everybody who formerly worked with them and left to serve in the Army or Navy during the great War. Duplicates for branch offices will be supplied.

PLATTSBURG OPENS FOR BOYS JULY 1

The Junior Plattsburg will open July 1 and will continue for eight weeks. It is to provide military training for boys under draft age. Professor George E. P. Russell of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is president of the camp and the director of the technical training is Professor Charles F. Park of the same institution.

At the head of the academic training is Oscar C. Gallagher, a Harvard graduate. The teaching will include aviation, seamanship, photography and map making from the air. A group of competent coaches will superintend water and land sports.

ARLINGTON PRIEST TO CELEBRATE FIRST MASS

The Rev. George Wiseman, an Arlington young man who was ordained to the priesthood the past week, will celebrate his first solemn mass at 11 o'clock mass, in St. Agnes' Roman Catholic Church, Arlington, tomorrow morning. The special music program will be sung by the choir.

ARLINGTON CHURCH OPENS TOMORROW

The new edifice of the Church of Our Savior (Episcopal) on Lake street, East Arlington, will be used for the first time tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. Bishop Babcock of Boston will dedicate the church. Confirmation services also will be held. Donald H. Morse, a young candidate for the ministry, will be ordained by Bishop Babcock.

A vested choir comprised of boys and girls has been organized in connection with the church, will sing at the dedicatory and confirmation services.

SUES LIGHT COMPANY FOR WOMAN'S DEATH

The Cambridge Electric Light Company has been sued for $15,000 by Roy A. Lang of Cambridge as administrator of the estate of Helen L. Lang of Cambridge. It is alleged that the deceased was struck by an automobile owned by the company and received injuries from which she died.

PRIZE OF $500 IS OFFERED FOR COMEDY

Manager Hunt Wants a Smart Musical Play by Bay State Authors

Here's a chance for some one to make $500. Carl Hunt, manager of the Plymouth Theatre, who is producing musical comedies, offers that amount for a new musical comedy written by one or more Bostonians, male or female.

"I will give $500 for a new, up-to-date musical comedy built on the lines of the so-called 'intimate musical plays,'" said Manager Hunt.

"There are no strings attached to my offer. It is open to all of Boston, or for that matter to any one in Massachusetts. The prize money will present the royalties for one week. Acceptance will also give aspiring composers and playwrights the chance of a lifetime to have their work tried out by a competent company.

"The sort of musical play I want is one of the intimate comedies made famous through the productions at the Princess Theatre, New York, such as 'Very Good, Eddie,' 'Oh, Boy' and 'Oh, Lady, Lady,' full of catchy music, bright lines and amusing situations.

"I am led to make this offer because of the scarcity of good new material. I believe there are plenty of musicians and playwrights in Boston capable of turning out productions which will even eclipse those of the usual Broadway writers.

"Manuscripts should be submitted to me at the Plymouth Theatre. I personally will examine every manuscript and report on its availability as speedily as possible. The winning [illegible]

COCKTAIL PLAYS USUAL ROLE IN DOWNFALL

What Happens After First One Is Clearly Told in "Open Your Eyes"

The insidious cocktail plays an important part in "Open Your Eyes," the sensational photoplay which was filmed under the direction of the United States Health Service, and which is now being shown to thousands daily at the Shubert Theatre.

The insidious cocktail has played an important part in the life of many a young girl whose curiosity had been aroused by hearing the drink spoken of more or less familiarly. And in the foolish desire to be thought one of the real girls she tries one.

Now, it is quite doubtful if any person really liked their first cocktail, especially those of the heavier sort; the taste is an acquired one, in most instances, and lucky the frivolous young lady whose stomach will not permit her to indulge in more than one. But the strange taste of the drink, which ordinarily causes a shiver to follow the first one, leads to the substitution of something else on the next round, and in many cases the substitute is champagne. After that all moderation is sent flying.

The particular young girl whose case is illustrated in "Open Your Eyes" has been brought up wrong from the start. Her mother, a butterfly of fashion, has practically [illegible]

TINY PUP PLAYS DRUNK CUTELY IN MOVIE

Hard Cider Cause of His Downfall in "Daddy Long Legs"

There is a little fox terrier in the land who seems to have the ambition to out Royal Lord Boyd in depicting the drunk. A short while ago he was on the spoken stage winning plaudits nightly and Wednesday and Saturday afternoons by making the performance of "The Follies" longer and much more interesting. But the movie has caught him.

And the pup was hired as a specialist in inebriety, he who was never tipsy in his life. At the Tremont Theatre these days is being shown the film version of Jean Webster's "Daddy Long Legs," with Mary Pickford, "Our Mary," as the foundling whom fortune finally favors. But before that good luck comes to her she is seen with a fellow-conspirator, both strikers against the so often serving of prunes at the asylum table. These two strikers are in disgrace, this boy and girl, and the fox terrier has started a sympathetic strike on his own account. The trio is marooned in the garden.

They are hungry, food having been denied them on account of their activities as strikers. They pray for it, and even as Joshua was fed by the ravens, so these kids get assistance from above, via over the garden wall. The deus ex machina is a panhandler who, either because he did not care for the stuff or for some other reason, tosses a box of food and a jug over the wall, to the imminent peril of the orphans. But they accept the goods which the gods have provided and "go to it." Then they proceed to [illegible]

THREE SOLDIERS IN NEW LONDON FINED

New London, Ct., June 21.—Lieutenant Arthur Hynes, Jr., U. S. N., and William Howie, recently returned from the army, in which he served in the Yankee Division, were each fined $12 in police court; and John N. C. Parker, recently released from service, was fined for attacking a supernumerary police officer, Phillip Eno, at the Pequot Casino. They refused to pay for a launch trip from the Griswold House. Henry Partney, Jr., of Boston, was also fined $10 for passing a bottle of whiskey to a sailor and resisting a policeman.

The "Spring tryout" has come to be one of the most important features of producing plays. "A Voice in the Dark" at the Park Square is one of New York's hoped-to-be successes which is getting pruned and polished here in Boston, to reopen in New York in the early Fall. The Spring tryout is a recent wrinkle.

Some astute manager came to the conclusion that no matter how promising a play looked in manuscript you couldn't tell if it were really any good until you saw it performed. Lots of them came to this conclusion long ago, but this one evolved the "Spring tryout."

Around the middle of May most legitimate theatres close and thousands of actors are footloose for the Summer, including the very best ones.

Thus it is an easy matter to collect a cast of crackerjack actors by a promise of three or four weeks work and the faint hope of lasting all through the Summer. People whom money couldn't buy for the season will listen to reason in the month of June, particularly if they have been playing the races.

So a production is made, a wonderful cast is secured at a minimum of expense, and a play is given a thorough trial in some city like Boston or Philadelphia in the early Summer. After two or three weeks the show closes, and in many cases an entirely new cast assembles for the Fall production. But in many cases there never is a Fall production.

In "A Voice in the Dark" Willard Mack is playing a young attorney who is practically a spectator of the main incidents of the play. That's all right because he won't be with that show in the fall. He is going out with his wife, Pauline Frederick, in a play by himself entitled "Lady Tony." This is the first appearance of Miss Frederick on the legitimate boards for a number of years. Her career in the movies is familiar to everyone.

A. H. Woods, producer of "A Voice in the Dark" is sending out 21 different companies next season.

"Educational" Opera

About this time every year somebody writes to the editor of this column to ask why he doesn't inaugurate a campaign for popular priced grand opera for the masses. The letter came yesterday.

"This is a great educational need," my contributor declared, "and if necessary to put it over the city should support the movement with a money appropriation."

Well now, I'll tell you why I don't fill the columns of this newspaper with demands for popular priced grand opera. It's because you can't give opera in a satisfactory manner in this country at low prices.

What we have come to call grand opera is opera presented in a grand way by such companies as the Metropolitan and the late lamented Boston Opera. In my opinion, that is the only way to give satisfactory opera, and even then it isn't always satisfactory.

You see what is known as grand opera isn't necessarily good music. Many of the most popular Italian operas consist of strings of cheap airs, poorly orchestrated.

If you take the entire list of operas in the repertory of the Metropolitan you will find fully half of them anything but masterpieces, and even the finest contain some indifferent music.

These works are made impressive by the great golden voices which sing them, the huge chorus, numbering one hundred and twenty-five, and the orchestra one hundred strong.

The world's golden voices are not numerous, and very few are within reach of the impressario who wishes to give opera at popular prices. Big choruses and full orchestras are tremendously expensive and quite out of the question for low priced opera.

Therefore these educational movements usually result in a troupe of over-young or broken-down opera singers, a chorus far too small to be effective, and an orchestra so few in numbers as to be anything but imposing.

A Beethoven Symphony can be exquisitely performed by an orchestra of twenty men. In fact a small orchestra will do as well with a classic symphony as a large one because of the overwhelming loveliness of the music.

But think of "Lucia," "Rigoletto," "Faust," "Boheme," "Huguenots," "Tales of Hoffmann" and similar works in the hands of second-rate soloists, small choruses and tiny orchestras.

You are not going to create a love for opera in the masses by taking them to bad performances, and you can't get good performances unless somebody pays for them.

The Chicago Opera Company charges $5 a seat and emerges from the season with $300,000 deficit.

If the Chicago Opera can't give good performances at $5 a seat without being compelled to pass the hat at the end of the season, how can good performances be given at one-third that price by anybody whether the object is education of the masses or anything else?

Interviewing Film Folk

One of the exasperating things about motion pictures is that you can't get at the actors.

Don't misunderstand me. I admit that many of them should be treated like the Kaiser and the Crown Prince for their offences against their profession, but I mean go around and ask them questions about their roles.

When a play is given in Boston and one of the performers behaves in a curious manner I just slip around behind and get an immediate explanation as to why the part is played in that way.

Or else I go into the lobby and find the author hanging around, just yearning to be interviewed and anxious to explain anything, particularly how the producer ruined his play by making changes in the original text.

But in the films the performers are as grim and inscrutable as the Sphinx. I wanted to ask some questions of that careless mother in "Open Your Eyes."

I wanted to ask her how it happened that her daughter went to New York to visit a society friend and never returned.

I wanted to ask the author why we didn't see that anxious mother, repentant of her carelessness, haunting the police stations trying to locate the missing girl. Or why we didn't see her breaking into the gilded apartment which the featherheaded daughter accepted after a single cocktail.

But no. Mother vanished from the picture and was never seen again. Nobody supplied her name, and she is probably out in California working in another film and strenuously denying that she took part in "Open Your Eyes."

Although "Open Your Eyes" is exceptionally well played, none of the actors or actresses in it seem to be as particular about having their names bandied about as they do in the usual picture.

And on the other hand, Richard Bennett gloried in the part he played in "Damaged Goods," a play which is based upon the same theme as "Open Your Eyes," but which did not go into quite so many details regarding the disease which has cursed the human race for many centuries.

Screen Make-up

Makeup for the screen is an art in itself, according to Wallace Beery, the well-known screen star, who has a prominent part in "The Unpardonable Sin," now being shown twice daily at the Majestic Theatre. "On the stage," he explains, "you have the footlights, spotlights and other devices to aid you in creating the illusion by make-up—but in front of the camera you are deprived of such aids, and have only your skill.

"For example, my role in 'The Unpardonable Sin' requires that one of my cheeks shall be decorated by a scar. Now if I were appearing on the stage it would be a simple matter to draw such a scar on my cheek with grease paint.

"But the lens of the camera would detect this simple artifice at once. Some other means of making that scar had to be found. For a time it looked as though the only way it could be done was to actually cut the cheek and make a real scar.

"Then I hit upon the plan of applying some liquid court-plaster to the cheek. By carefully pulling the cheek out and forming a furrow you create the illusion of a scar about six inches long. The liquid court-plaster holds it in place and gives an illusion which deceives even the lens of the camera.

"I spent several weeks being filmed in 'The Unpardonable Sin' and during that time kept my cheek made up all the time. The result was that when I removed the liquid court-plaster I had a great deal of difficulty in getting the face back into shape."

Walking in the Grand Canal

"A gondola that refused to move caused the most amusing situation I ever saw on the stage," announces Miss Lenore Chippendale, of Carl Hunt's company of musical comedy artists at the Plymouth Theatre, "although at the time it happened, as I was one of the participants, it didn't seem so funny to me.

"It was during a performance of the 'Merchant of Venice' by Mr. Sothern. One of the actors and myself were supposed to get into a gondola and make our exit by being slowly drawn off stage. Of course the gondola ran on wheels along a little track, and was propelled by the hands of husky stagehands in the wings.

"It so happened that the actor, who was supposed to thus glide gracefully off with me in the gondola was very heavy. My weight didn't make the gondola any lighter. We both took our places in the boat.

"The stagehands gave a tug. The gondola didn't move, but the shock of the tug jostled us considerably. Again the stagehands pulled, and again we lost our balance, but not an inch moved the gondola.

"Meanwhile the stage was waiting. I had a happy thought. I whispered to my stout confrere to get out and walk off stage. As Mr. Sothern was waiting in the wings, he decided to take my advice. But instead of getting out on the land side of the gondola, the actor stepped out the other side and stalked off. It looked to the audience as though he was stepping into the water and was walking on the surface. Then to make matters worse, I lost my head and did the same thing, and the stagehands pulled off the empty gondola.

"No comedian, living or dead, ever succeeded in making an audience laugh as we did by this impromptu stunt of walking on the Grand Canal of Venice. The audience went into hysterics, and it was necessary to ring down the curtain for several minutes until the audience could compose itself, and the performance could continue."

Griffith Does Some Rewriting

"The Fall of Babylon" is the next Griffith picture which will occupy the Colonial Theatre. As you may surmise, this is a rebuilt version of the Babylonian portion of "Intolerance." These episodes were the most spectacular scenes ever filmed, and by far the most wonderful work ever done by Griffith. "Intolerance" was the least successful of the Griffith works because it carried four stories simultaneously and four different episodes of the world's history, and made too great a demand upon the intelligence of picture-goers.

The Babylonian scenes are now used in a powerful love story and should make a most satisfying picture.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

"The Firefly," Rudolph Friml's tuneful operetta, last seen here half a dozen years ago, with Emma Trentini in the stella role, will be sung next week by Carl Hunt's unusually fine company of musical comedy artists at the Plymouth Theatre. The operetta, one of the most charming ever produced on the American stage, has not been heard here since its original production.

Dorothy Maynard, the petite brown-haired prima donna who has conquered Boston by her work in other musical pieces, will play the part of "Nina," originally played by Trentini, and the supporting cast will be up to the Plymouth standard of excellence, including such popular names as Laura Hamilton, Lenore Chippendale, Flavia Arcaro, Rene Brown, George Gorman, Irving Beebe and John Norton.

"Gianina," "A Woman's Smile" and "The Beautiful Ship From Toyland" are among the many striking musical hits of the piece, which, as might be expected with Friml as composer, is far beyond the usual modern musical comedy for rhythm and melody. The book, written by Otto Hauerbach, tells a delightful and unusual story of the rise of a singer from a street musician to grand opera, and involves as pretty a love tale as was ever woven. The scenes laid in New York and in Bermuda, are striking.

"The Firefly" should be welcomed by Boston theatregoers of discriminating taste.

COPLEY THEATRE

A brand new farce entitled "Two Pairs" will be acted at the Copley Theatre for the first time next Monday evening by the Henry Jewett Players. Its author is Donald MacLaren.

A mere suggestion of the plot of this new play is all that is necessary. Vincent Stirling, bored with the day to day existence of a young man, seeks diversion. He suggests that he change places with his valet on a little week-end journey into the country to Mr. Esmond's, who is a friend of his father, who wishes him to marry Sylvia Esmond. He has never met her, and he objects to being on exhibition as a prospective husband. "We'll make a formal visit," he proposes to his father, "Boult and I, and from a distance I can see the girl you're so determined I shall marry." Both the elder Stirling and Mr. Esmond agree to become a party to this little deception, unaware of the fact that at the same time Sylvia is planning to masquerade as her maid Lucy, and to put Lucy in her own place.

By the time the second act begins, the humor of these mixed identities is well under way, and for three acts the fun rages fast and furiously. The play has been prepared for production under the immediate stage direction of Henry Jewett, with Nicholas Joy to appear as Vincent Stirling, Cameron Matthews as Mr. Stirling, H. Conway Wingfield as Mr. Esmond, E. E. Clive as Boult, the valet, Leonard Craske as John Esmond, Jessamine Newcombe as Sylvia Esmond, and Viola Roach as Lucy, the maid.

KEITH'S THEATRE

The four Marx brothers and their own big company of fifteen singers and dancers is the headline act coming to Keith's next week. It is returning to vaudeville after a tour around the world and will spend only one week in Boston. The act is a riot of laughter and has beautiful scenic effects.

Andrew Mack with a new offering of songs is also on the bill. The rest of the bill includes Fenton and Fields in their latest success "Passed by the Board of Censors," Gracie Emmett and company in her new screaming comedy success "Mrs. Murphy's Third Husband," Sinclair and Gasper in "The Bride and the Window," Kranz and LaSalle in songs and stories, Gliding O'Mearas, Black and White in novelty diversion, Maryon Valle, America's peerless danseuse, and Ota Gygi, formerly court violinist to the King of Spain.

NORUMBEGA PARK

"Help Wanted," Jack Lait's drama of modern New York life will be the offering of the Liberty Players at Norumbega Park next week. Miss Helen Kinsel and her fellow players will give two performances daily of this Morosco piece, which made a decided hit when produced in New York. The play deals with a stenographer with tendencies towards flirting, and is in three acts and four scenes, all laid in New York.

Besides "Help Wanted" there are two concerts daily by Edna Francis Simmons' Ladies' Orchestra, the big athletic fields and picnic grounds, the zoo, the new restaurant where dancing is a feature, and canoes on the Charles River to divert and entertain guests.

TREMONT TEMPLE

"The Life of Theodore Roosevelt," a photoplay founded upon the leading incidents in the career of our recently deceased ex-President, will begin an engagement at the Tremont Temple with the Monday afternoon performance, and continuing twice a day thereafter. This is announced as an authorized version of the career of the great American, one to which he gave his sanction.

The photoplay begins the story with Roosevelt as a boy, where he develops the characteristics that later gave him eminence. Through his school and college days, when he develops the aggressiveness which put to practice proves so efficacious, forms an inspiring portion of the story. After college days there is his life on the plains, cowboy, hunter and explorer, he joins with the rough men of the hills and plains, fights and fraternizes and proves his mettle with the result that he becomes endeared to them.

Then back again to the East, where he becomes office-holder, and makes his first fight against the vicious machine administrators, notably as police commissioner of New York, and later as the governor of the State. Through the days of the Spanish war, when he resigned office to join the Rough Riders, and later as Vice-President and President, the history is carried vigorously forward. As President his spectacular, covering, as it does, the Venezuelan controversy, when the Kaiser was balked of his great bluff, and the efforts he made to build up a great navy. From these incidents he is taken in private life, where he continues as a fighter for every cause he deemed just.

PLYMOUTH

A vacation in one day might easily be applied to the all-day sail to Plymouth, the historic landing place of the Pilgrims. The luxurious steel steamer South Shore, under the careful guidance of Captain Elmer McFarland, leaves Rowes Wharf every day except Saturday at 10 a. m. and returns at 6 o'clock in the evening. On Saturdays, due to the half holiday, Mr. Lane, general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, has arranged to have the steamer leave at 1 p. m., returning at 11 in the evening. Perhaps the most attractive feature of the trip is the beautifully appoined dining salon on the main deck of the steamer South Shore. Here steak and chicken dinners are served, every table near a window enabling the diners to view the ocean while enjoying their noonday meal. During the return trip tea is served and the Mayflower orchestra provides concerts daily. Plenty of time is given at Plymouth to visit the many points of historic interest.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

A pair of vaudeville bills, with double headliners, will be presented at Loew's Orpheum Theatre through the week, and with the addition of the first-run photoplays and other film subjects there should be plentiful appeal to seekers of indoor amusements. The fact that the Orpheum Auditorium is always cool and comfortable is an added inducement. Others to be seen are: Harry J. Kelly, in Celticisms; Bennington and Scott, in dances; Roy Harrah and Jacquilina, skaters and dancers, and Eskimo and Seals. On the screen there will be shown the latest news pictures, a comedy, and Lila Lee, in "A Daughter of the Wolf."

GLOBE THEATRE

There are two excellent photoplay bills for the week at Loew's Globe Theatre. For the first half there will be shown for the first time Lila Lee, in "A Daughter of the Wolf," in which she is pictured as the motherless daughter of a fur smuggler. Brought up in the Canadian woods, she is of the wilds, untutored and ignorant of worldy ways. But she is possessed of a natural wisdom which stands her in good stead, through some trying experiences forced upon her by her father's calling, and the intrusion of a romance into her life. It is said to be a thrilling and very attractive story. The other photoplay will be, "Home Wanted," picturing Madge Evans.

MODERN THEATRE

William Gillette's famous drama of the Civil War, "Secret Service," has been translated to the screen and will have its first Boston showings through the week at the Modern Theatre, with Rupert Julian in the leading role. In the handling of tense situations William Gillette has always been a master. His methods are direct as they are fruitful, and his climaxes are the cumulations of power. And the interest of its story is as alive today as when it first was presented. The accompanying photoplay will show Mabel Normand in "Why Doctors Disagree." This is a real farce in which Miss Normand, comedienne in clowning as she is recognized to be, is fitted with a part and incidental story which give her ample opportunities to exhibit her particular abilities.

ARTHUR HOWARD BACK

Patrons of the Somerville Theatre, Davis Square, Somerville, will be glad to hear that Manager Clyde E. McArdle has arranged for the return of Arthur Howard, former leading man of this popular organization, for the week of June 30. Mr. Howard, who has been absent for an entire season, is held in high esteem with the large clientele of this theatre, and his reappearance will no doubt attract the great legion of friends that this capable player has made during his long stay in Somerville. Mr. McArdle has also provided the proper vehicle for this event in the selection of "The Only Son" as the play for the week.

McISAAC says that

"A VOICE IN THE DARK" at the Park Square has had a prologue added by Willard Mack since the opening night, and several other scenes introduced. It is now a very thrilling and mystifying melodrama.

"OPEN YOUR EYES," the sensational film dealing with social disease, and indorsed by the United States medical authorities, begins its third week of phenomenal business. The subject is bitter, but the treatment sugar coats it, so that the film is not repulsive, but intensely interesting. Shubert.

MARY PICKFORD, in "Daddy Long Legs," commences a second week at the Tremont Monday. The film's greatest ingenue never had a more suitable play, and the film itself is a great improvement upon the original comedy.

"THE UNPARDONABLE SIN," a film setting of Rupert Hughes' great novel dealing with conditions in Belgium under German occupation, continues to draw big audiences. It is one of the most overpowering of pictures.

"BROKEN BLOSSOMS," Griffith's latest production for the screen, begins its fifth and last week at the Colonial next Monday. It will be followed by "The Fall of Babylon."

PARAGON PARK PALM GARDEN offers a big Broadway cabaret show, a diving girl's tournament and other Summer features. The park especially offers a free outdoor circus with numerous daring stunts.

PEMBERTON INN, besides the customary indoor attractions operates two aeroplanes and a huge pool, where bathing by moonlight may be enjoyed.

BEACON THEATRE

Melodrama and farce in film guise will share honors on the bill of first-run photoplays that will be shown through the week at the Beacon Theatre. That famous classic of the stage, "Secret Service," which is recognized as William Gillette's greatest playwriting contribution, at last has reached the screen, to which it should add honor and prove the most welcome fare. Rupert Julian heads a capable cast of players pictured in the characters. The other photoplay will show Mabel Normand in "Why Doctors Disagree," being the comical adventure of a village girl whose abilities at mischief making lead her a troubled set of experiences in which the ludicrous holds full sway.

NANTASKET

Eight steamers, extra trips, early and late boats are some of the features which are popularizing the hour's sail to Nantasket Beach. Manager Frederic L. Lane has made every preparation for what he believes will be the greatest Summer season Nantasket Beach has ever known. The time tables of running time for this Summer surpass all previous schedules and the extra late trip from Nantasket is meeting with great favor. One is now able to leave the city as late as 8 o'clock, enjoy a cool sail down the harbor and still have ample opportunity to visit the many amusements at the Beach. On Saturday and Sunday there are half-hour trips during the busy periods, eliminating the usual congestion.

I desire to express my appreciation. As an entertainment it held interest all through. As to the benefit, it will help parents to see their duty, and perform it delicately and practically. The fools will go to quacks for treatment to hide their folly. It will awaken sober thought in young people who will question if dissipation pays for the agony of mind and body it creates.

K. OF C. SENDS OUT APPEAL FOR JOBS

Urges Employers Co-Operate With Organization During Its Drive for Service Men

If everyone felt like Miss Lucy N. Walker, the K. of C. secretary at Berkeley street headquarters, on the question of getting jobs for returned soldiers, there would be no need of the present drive that the organization is conducting.

A Fall River girl is Miss Walker, and it is to her that the job-getting ex-service men present their registration cards who want jobs. Thursday there were 720 applicants at the K. of C. headquarters. Friday there were 1,400. Every day a long file of eager boys, ready for a return to civilian duties, passes through the office of the K. of C. headquarters and employment service.

IS EMPLOYER'S DUTY.

Miss Walker is emphatic in putting the employment of returned soldiers up to the employer as a patriotic duty.

"If I could, I'd like to say this to every one of them," she declared: "Mr. Employer, you not only owe it to these boys to help them get what they deserve, but you will also be solving one of the big social problems of the day. These boys aren't begging any favors; all they want is a chance to show what they can do. They do not ask for kindness on your part, they only need a chance to show that they can be valuable to you. You need them as much as they need the work you can offer them."

In an effort to arouse business men of Boston and vicinity to this mutual need, the K. of C. reconstruction and employment service is sending out the following letter to employers. It is signed by Peter W. Collins, director of the service:

"The big job today in our country is to provide jobs for every soldier, sailor and marine discharged from the service of our country.

"THE BIG JOB."

"You, as an employment manager, have had exceptional experience in employment problems and you are in a position to help by advice, suggestion and co-operation in getting these men who come to our bureaus in touch with jobs.

"Industry today needs men who can make good, and surely the boys who have rendered such splendid service to their country, and brought glory and victory to its banner cannot fail in making good.

"We are writing, therefore, to assure you that, if we can render service by supplying men to you who have applied for positions to our organization, we shall feel privileged to do so, and hope that you will take advantage of the opportunity offered by our service station and service secretaries in securing employes.

"The man, the job and production are the big things today. Let us bring them together by doing away with unemployment."

LAWRENCE MAN DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Lawrence, June 21.—Frank Hannon of Essex street is dead at the Lawrence General Hospital as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident in North Andover Wednesday. At the time of the accident he was riding in a truck owned and operated by Louis McAloon, a contractor, which, it is alleged, was run into by a touring car owned and operated by Miss Zeta E. Dunn, principal of the Union Grammar School of North Andover. Hannon was thirty-one years of age and is survived by his widow and son.

GLOUCESTER GIRL KILLED BY AUTO

Gloucester, June 21.—Four-year-old Aldina Baptiste died at the Addison Gilbert Hospital following an auto accident on Main street. With her brother, the child was crossing the street when struck by a car operated by Mrs. Malcolm Farmer, summering on Page street, Bass Rock.

FIGHT ON BANK LAW STILL ON, SAYS SWIG

Simon Swig, vice-president of the Tremont Trust Company, announces he will continue his fight against the recently enacted law forbidding saving banks from declaring dividends oftener than every six months, despite the favorable attitude of the Legislature to counteract the previous legislation.

The law as enacted would also prevent depositors from receiving interest on money withdrawn within six months. Mr. Swig wants the law placed before the voters under the initiative and referendum.

His purpose in continuing the referendum fight is to be prepared in the event of the corrective legislation failing of enactment through a technicality. Already the names of 12,000 voters throughout the State have been certified and are in the hands of the Secretary of State.

Among the signers on the referendum petition are six mayors, and many city and town officials. They include Mayors Quinn of Cambridge, Creamer of Lynn, Thompson of Lowell, Flood of Taunton, Hurley of Lawrence and Weeks of Everett, United States District Attorney Boynton, Secretary of State Langtry, Assessors Theodore Daly, Jacob Lebowich, Fred E. Bolton, William E. Cuddy and O'Brien of Boston, City Treasurer Lehan of Cambridge, Councillors Walter L. Collins, Donoghue, McDonald and Watson of Boston, Sealer of Weights and Measures Wooley of Boston and Colonel John H. Dunn, Street Commissioner of Boston.

CONVICT AUTOIST ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Exeter, N. H., June 21.—Philip Trober of Lewiston, Me., was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in the Rockingham County Superior Court for the killing here on August 12, 1918, with his automobile, of Mrs. Vianna R. Breed, seventy, of Hampton Falls. The victim was struck while she was walking along the Newburyport turnpike hauling a small hand cart, from which she was selling fish.

Judge Sawyer deferred sentence until next week and Trober in the meantime was taken to jail at Portsmouth. The State charged that Trober, who is thirty-one years old, was intoxicated and was driving at a high rate of speed, thus being guilty of criminal negligence. He was on his way from Camp Devens to Lewiston and had passed the day in Lawrence. The defence was a general denial.

BARRACKS BURN IN FIRE AT DEVENS

Damage Is $30,000 in Blaze in Artillery Area of Cantonment

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 21.—Damage of $30,000 was caused by a fire that destroyed two barracks and an outpost in the artillery area. The flames could be seen for miles and smoke poured through company streets.

Major-General McCain and Colonel George L. Byroade watched the flames and Brigadier-General Michael J. Linehan aided Fire Chief Dan Harrington. Sergeant-Major Cannon, former member of Engine Company 18 of Boston, rescued valuable material and manned a line of hose.

Investigation of charges made by Hugh Jeffries, president of the American Military Reform Association, who alleged that while in this cantonment he "had been summarily arrested, searched and his private papers confiscated," revealed the fact that he was "merely told to leave the soldiers alone and not to interfere with them while they were awaiting their turn to be discharged from the service." This action was taken by officers who had been assigned to the task of investigating Jeffries and the object of his mission at camp.

After Jeffries' departure from camp he enlisted the interest of Congressman Johnson, Republican, in his case, and the latter read a letter from Jeffries on the floor of the National House stating that the officers in this cantonment had declared that the literature Jeffries circulated among the soldiers here "was demoralizing and would tend to weaken the morale of the army and navy and incite trouble."

ATTACKS ARMY CASTE.

An alleged copy of the circular that Jeffries distributed to the men reads, in part, as follows:

"A change in our national military system, wherein all despotic, autocratic, arbitrary authority now held by officers is entirely removed; wherein the line of demarcation in our army which separates the enlisted men from the officer personnel, under the assumption that the enlisted man has neither honor, intelligence nor ability, and that the officer is possessed of all these qualifications, but to a degree only commensurate with his rank, is entirely effaced; and wherein all to whom authority may be delegated shall be accountable for the proper exercise of authority to those over whom the authority is exercised and to the sovereign people, instead of only to those of higher rank."

For impersonation of an overseas soldier and wearing gold service chevrons on his army coat, which he later attempted to sell to an agent of the Department of Justice, Private Charles H. Clark, Cantonment Casual Enlisted Men's Detachment, was sentenced to six months in the camp guardhouse and to forfeit two-thirds of his pay, after being found guilty by a court-martial board.

AIR RIDE FOR RECRUITS.

It is being planned to transport by airplane to this camp all men enlisted in Boston for the air service. The airplane which arrived here Thursday is to be drafted for this work, it is stated. The first consignment of students of the officers training school, which opened here today, came from Bangor High School. A crowd watched the embryo officers as they qualified on the drill field for places in the different companies.

The old laundry building, near the main road, is being rapidly put in shape for school purposes. It will be run under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

(Signed)

ARLINGTON PAYS ALL DAY HONOR TO HEROES

Informal Celebration at "Boys'" Request Includes Parade, Athletic Games and Banquet

Arlington paid honor to both the living and dead heroes of the world war today when the big welcome home celebration to the returned soldiers, sailors and marines of that town was held. The festivities included a parade, exercises on the Spy Pond athletic field, a banquet and a dance, this evening. A very informal celebration was carried out at the request of the "boys" who did not care for the usual oratory. Even at the banquet speech making was tabled.

Festivities opened with a parade of all the returned service men, with an escort, early today through Massachusetts avenue, from Park avenue, Arlington Heights, to Marathon street in East Arlington, and then countermarched to the Spy Pond athletic field. The town was gaily decorated with flags.

LOMBARD CHIEF MARSHAL.

Major General Walter E. Lombard, retired, chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration, was chief marshal, and his staff included Major H. Stanley Cushing, 101st Ammunition Train; Major Morgan Kinf, Major Horace Baum and Major William D. Cotton, 101st Engineers; Captain Edward F. Brock and Captain Charles H. Lawrence.

The roster of the parade included a platoon of police, Chief Thomas O. D. Urquhart commanding, the Coast Artillery Band, General Lombard and staff, I Company, 12th Regiment, Massachusetts State Guard, Captain Hollis M. Gott in command; Francis Gould Post 36, G. A. R., Andrew McGinnis, commander, in automobiles; returned men of the army, Captain A. Heath Onthank cammonding, and returned men of the navy, Captain George A. Percy commanding.

After the procession arrived on the athletic field a brief service for the twenty-one men of the town who died in the late war was held. The local Boy Scouts carried a banner bearing the names of the twenty-one men in the procession. The band played a hymn and the names of the dead were read, together with the war record of each.

PAID THE SACRIFICE.

Those paying the supreme sacrifice, including one woman, were: Major Marshall S. Holbrook, Lieutenant Warren E. Robinson, Lieutenant Charles H. Upton, Lieutenant Raymond Taylor, Lieutenant Edward R. [illegible], Corporal Thomas F. Finn, Joseph Zwinge, John A. Barr, Jr., Arthur Vail, Durant S. Currier, Charles N. O'Donnell John F. Grady, Michael Marrigan, Pyrhelm Gunnar, John H. Cochrane, John F. McCarthy, Richmond F. Collins, Wilbur O. Allen, Davis O. Lawrence, C. Russell Riley and Miss Grace McClellan. These exercises closed with the sounding of taps.

On the athletic field there was a baseball game between the service men of Arlington and the service of Watertown. Also a band concert and singing by a quartet.

XMAS GIFT RETURNS AFTER TRIP AROUND U. S.

A Christmas package mailed last October by Louise H. Herrick of No. 18 Robinson street, Somerville, to her brother, Henry W., who was then on duty in England on Subchaser No. 97, has been received back in good condition. It has been sent all over the United States, but had never reached its proper designation. Some of the articles were taken out and others substituted in their place. The brother was discharged from the service ten days ago.

PONY EXPRESS LICENSES STIR WELLESLEY

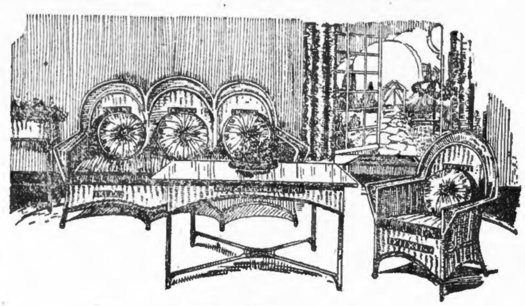

A special town meeting, called for Monday night, as a result of a petition of more than 200 residents of Wellesley to remonstrate against the action of the Board of Selectmen in issuing three pony express licenses, was adjudged illegal by Attorney Clarence A. Bunker, the town counsel.

The petitioners, however, declare that they will hold the meeting in spite of this ruling, and promise an interesting time for all who attend the gathering.

Plans are going ahead, however, to get out a crowd of "drys" for the meeting, which is scheduled for 7:30 Monday night in the Town Hall.

For several years the town has been "bone dry," but this year the lid was lifted somewhat and the Selectmen allowed the transportation of the wet goods. At a hearing several weeks ago several of the town's most prominent citizens protested against the action of the board, but the Selectmen did not see fit to change their attitude.

IRISH WOMEN DEMAND U. S. THROW OUT LEAGUE TREATY

More than one thousand women, assembled at a mass meeting in Faneuil Hall, conducted by the women of Boston in aid of the Irish Republic, declared themselves strongly opposed to any League of Nations or treaty or alliance or understandings of any nature whatever with any nation which is violating or proposes to violate, now or later, the right of self-determination of peoples.

They demanded the rejection by the United States Senate of a treaty which violates the most cardinal point for which America fought and for which thousands of Americans died.

Because of the unanimous approval which the body gave the sentiments thus expressed, a committee of public school teachers of Boston and Cambridge drafted the following resolution which was unanimously adopted by the meeting:

WHEREAS, President Wilson proclaimed to the world that America was fighting in the war against Germany for the achievement of the so-called fourteen points which he promulgated; and

WHEREAS, The Entente powers, including Great Britain, through her Prime Minister, publicly acceded to these fourteen points and became thus honorably bound by their provisions, saving only the question adjoining the freedom of the seas, which Great Britain reserved for fuller explanation; and

BASIS OF ARMISTICE.

WHEREAS, At the signing of the armistice these fourteen points were re-ordained by the Entente powers and made the basis of the armistice and were accepted by the enemy as a basis upon which they were willing to surrender; and

WHEREAS, more than one million and a half men of Irish blood participated in the war against Germany on the side of the Allies in reliance upon these fourteen points; and

WHEREAS, no intelligent and honest military man would deny that the war must have been lost but for the contribution made by the men of the Irish race upon the faith pledged in the fourteen points; and

WHEREAS, the general nature of the fourteen points is a declaration in behalf of the right of every people to self-determination of their own advance; and

"VIOLATION OF RIGHTS."

WHEREAS, The proposed treaty of peace now adopted by the representatives of the nations of the Entente powers and the United States at Paris violates flagrantly the principles of the right of self-determination of the peoples; and

WHEREAS, the proposed League of Nations, intertwined with the said treaty of peace, and guaranteeing the blood and treasure of America, the settlement of the said treaty involves the violation of self-determination of all peoples;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that we, citizens of the United States and of Massachusetts in Faneuil Hall, assembled, oppose

FIRST: The ratification by our National Senate of a treaty which violates the most cardinal point for which we fought and for which scores of thousands of Americans have died.

SECOND: Any league of nations which shall guarantee or in any way endorse directly or indirectly any violation of the right of self-determination of peoples,

OPPOSITION TO LEAGUE.

THIRD: Any league of nations, or treaty, or alliance, or understandings of any nature whatever with any nation which is violating or proposes to violate during the period of said treaty or league of nations or understandings the right of self-determination of peoples; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED—That a copy of these resolutions be communicated to United States Senators Lodge and Walsh.

The meeting opened with the gathering singing the "Star Spangled Banner." Miss Monica Foley, a school teacher, presided and seemingly transfused to the sober, serious and solemn body of women the demand that Ireland's freedom must be settled at once.

PLAN BIG FIGHT.

No propaganda of any nature or source could forestall the fight that Irish blood in this country was going to make in behalf of Erin and every medium possible would be used to place it before every person in America.

In such places where it was not possible to distribute the campaign of education, which has just started through the mails or other similar mediums, aeroplanes would drop it into those places from the skies.

The adoption of the resolutions followed stirring remarks made by the different speakers and are the first accepted in America by a body of women interested in the Irish cause opposing the League of Nations because of England's attitude toward Ireland.

ERIN'S OBJECT RETOLD.

The story of Erin's fight for her independence for more than seven hundred years was told by John Morton, who is in charge of the movement in Boston and was retold by Michael Fitzgerald, superintendent of Cambridge schools; John X. Regan, a divinity student; ex-Representative John J. Murphy and Edward F. McSweeney, who in an address entitled "Too Late," feelingly interpreted to the audience Erin's answer to "Dominion Home Rule."

"Irish independence means the destruction of England," declared Mr. Fitzgerald, to the wild approval of the women. "Four million and a half people not in a company, battalion or regiment and they are going to destroy forty-one million of people in the Kingdom of England. That shows a guilty conscience."

"This meeting is arranged by school teachers of Boston and Cambridge, many of whom I recognize from my association with school work for the past twenty years, and it accordingly augurs well for any propaganda that may be spread in this vicinity."

NAMES OLD-TIME FRIENDS.

John X. Regan recalled the days when John Quincy Adams, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips, General Ben Butler and George Frisbie Hoar spoke from the platform of the Cradle of Liberty in the cause of Ireland.

Ex-Representative Murphy of South Boston outlined the campaign of education and assured the gathering that Massachusetts would give her united support to the Irish cause because of her historical connections and as proof of his belief referred to the fact that her great "Yankee" Senator had already joined hands with the junior Senator from the State in the fight.

Edward F. McSweeney spoke in part as follows:

"Six months ago the British government flouted with scorn any idea of even a partial Irish Home Rule Bill, such as was passed and afterwards denied in 1914. Driven by the force of an outraged world opinion from one position to another, the attempt is now being made to divert public opinion from the real issue by an unauthorized attempt to gain consideration for what is called 'Dominion Home Rule!'

"This proposal is without any semblance of authority. It is a red herring drawn across the trail. The only recent official pronouncement made on this subject is in a pamphlet issued by the British propaganda office, of which Lord Northcliffe is the head, entitled "The Irish Question—Federation or Secession."

PRINCIPLES LAID DOWN.

After repeating the old falsehoods regarding the superiority in character, industry, political stability and loyalty of the Ulsterite Protestant, as compared with the fickleness, ignorance and poverty of the priest-ridden south, the official principles of Dominion Home Rule are laid down.

"First — That the Westminster Parliament shall retain all the powers and functions not expressly delegated and made over to the national Parliaments.

"Second—That customs and excise, which are not merely the symbols of union, but are of the very essence of union, shall remain in the hands of the Westminster Parliament.

"There was much more in this official British document of the denial of Ireland's wrongs under the Act of Union, but reduced to its essentials, the real Dominion Home Rule scheme, not the vague and unauthorized announcement devised to create dissension, is based on maintaining existing political, social and industrial partitions, which it is the essence of the claim for Irish liberty to remove forever.

"The fact that it may go farther than any scheme of Irish home rule previously presented, does not entitle it to serious consideration. Great Britain never moves to grant justice to any of its subject peoples unless to the pressure of applied force.

WOULD HAVE HELPED.

"If the British government had carried out the home rule bill passed by Parliament in 1913, it would have created better feeling and possibly postponed the day of final separation, but it could not have prevented its ultimate coming because the tenacity of the Irish to racial ideals has not been surpassed in the history of the world.

"This last scheme of Dominion Home Rule proposed in the desperate state of the British government, really devised by Lord Northcliffe, is fathered by Sir Horace Plunkett, an Anglo-Irishman who, while he has done a great deal of good work for Ireland, stands with one foot in England and one in Ireland. Mr. Plunkett has always put England, its purposes and prosperity, first.

O'CONNOR DISCREDITED.

"T. P. O'Connor represents in Parliament a Liverpool constituency, the most squalid and poverty-stricken in all England. He was appointed during the war to a salaried position as motion picture censor, and has long been discredited as having any right or claim to represent the Irish people.

"The third sponsor is Yeats, a gifted writer, neo-pagan in belief, and totally out of touch with the spiritual and nationalistic sentiment of the Irish people.

"The Irish question can only be settled definitely when it is settled right, and not by any consideration of England's interests, but wholly of Ireland's rights."

RECRUIT DRIVE RALLY DRAWS HUNDREDS

"Sweet Adeline" and the Kiddy Performers Again on Boston Common Today

A veritable war-time enthusiasm is permeating the army drive for recruits. Greater Boston and all New England is responding to the appeal for enlistments in remarkable manner. Sixty recruits were accepted during the last twenty-four hours at the army recruiting office on Tremont Row and the Coast Artillery is crowding the air service in the favor of the youthful recruits.

As early as reveille today visitors were inspecting the camp on the Common and watching the cooks prepare the first chow of the day. Then the noon-day rally at Liberty Cottage under the auspices of the Boston American proved itself a consistent magnet for the crowds despite the lowering skies. Not even in war time have the crowds been larger than at the noon-day rallies, for certainly the program of entertainment provided has not been excelled.

Announcement that "Sweet Adeline," Congressman John F. Fitzgerald's forty-two-centimetre song, was to go into action today in the recruiting drive, furnished a decided boost to the general interest. The Congressman had gladly agreed to address the rally and to sing the song that he has made famous at the end of his recruiting speech.

INTEREST IS WIDESPREAD.

How the interest in the drive is spreading throughout New England, formerly apathetic to the appeal of the recruiting sergeant, is indicated in the request from Danforth, Me., to Major F. B. Shaw, in charge of recruiting, to send a "tank" to that town.

"Danforth, Me., is merely a symbol," said Major Shaw, "of the many small towns of which few ever heard, which are on their toes for this drive. They are anxious to make their quota. They want to finish the job, make the standing army of the United States a thing to be respected. That's what it amounts to."

Besides Congressman Fitzgerald there was on the program of the American rally in Liberty Cottage a number of the pupils of the School for Stage Children, conducted by Mrs. Maybelle Lyman. These little folk have enthralled Liberty Cottage audiences already with their ability.

KIDDIES DELIGHT CROWD.

Marguerite and Verna Barr, the midget performers who stirred the big audience of Thursday to wild applause, were back on the program with the duets "Wedding Bells" and "I'll Say She Does," singing the latter by special permission [illegible]

Other pupils of the school were on the program as were other performers, juvenile and adult. The instructors at the school include Mrs. [illegible], who teaches singing; Mme. [illegible], fancy dancing, and Kate Ryan, dramatic art.

Among the attractions of the day at Liberty Cottage, although not on the bill, is Lieutenant McMa[illegible] of the Air Service, who on Thursday night demonstrated the practical value of army training by jumping into a [illegible] on Arlington street. [illegible] Patrolman Charles McGowan.

Brigadier General [illegible] was the speaker at the last rally and the stirring remarks of the Massachusetts soldier wrought his audience up to a pitch of enthusiasm which resulted in the securing of many recruits.

Baby Pulls Horse's Tail to Get Magic Hair; Is Kicked

Six-year-old Alice Plant won't try to play with horses' tails any more. As the result of this pastime she is at the Relief Hospital, recovering from contusions and abrasions of the face. Someone had told her that if she plucked a hair from a horse's tail she would be able to [illegible] a fairy. She tried it. But she got no further than an attempt to pluck the horse hair when the animal kicked.

The child was picked up some distance from the horse by stable attendants.

When General Vanderbilt was in France he met the prince in connection with his military duties. Several large entertainments will be given and among the hostesses will be Mrs. [illegible] of Ochre Court.

'ONLY ONE FLAG,' SAYS WOOD AT WESLEYAN

Memorial Exercises for War Heroes Dominate Commencement Program

Middletown, [illegible], June 21.—"There is room in this country for but one flag, and that is the American flag," declared Major General Leonard Wood, speaking today at the [illegible] exercises of Wesleyan University in Memorial Hall.

[illegible] America wants to avoid."

Continuing General Wood said in part:

"We must do all we can in this period of readjustment to establish the best possible relation between labor and capital, for they are interdependent. We do not want an autocracy of either labor or capital. The main thing is for labor and capital to pull together in the present great [illegible] [illegible]

BOYS OPEN TANK AND SET FIRE TO GASOLINE

Big Explosion Narrowly Averted by Quick Action of Driver on Sudbury Street

A gasoline explosion which might have cost many lives was narrowly averted when an auto tank containing several hundred gallons of gasoline was removed from an area of flame in the archway of No. 78 Sudbury street.

While the driver of the tank, John J. Sullivan, was in the building [illegible] boys opened the [illegible] and set fire to the gasoline in the street and ran away.

[illegible] attempted to stamp out the flames and was burned about the feet and legs, but not seriously. [illegible] Sullivan dashed into the street from the building, jumped to the wheel of the big tank and drove it out of danger, just as the flames were playing about the rear of the tank. Had he delayed a few seconds an explosion would have been inevitable.

While Patrolman No. 1 was responding to an alarm turned in as a result of the fire in the street, it ran down William [illegible], of [illegible] Washington street, Dorchester, at Washington and Court streets. He was taken to the Relief Hospital.

YALE VARSITY WINS EXCITING STRUGGLE ON THAMES

New London, June 21.—A lunging, last pull at the sweeps and a shell darted under the high iron bridge that spans the Thames. No. 6 crumpled over his oar, his bronzed form hanging limply. Then came the losers, a game, never-say-die crew of doughty Harvard watermen. There was half a length of open water between them and Yale in the fifty-first dual regatta of the two institutions.

Fou miles downstream from Moulthrop Point and a fraction over—that was the distance. Every inch of the wind-whipped lanes was a fight. Harvard got the jump and showed the way to the two-mile flags. Yale led at another half-mile, rested at the three-mile while Harvard's dying effort was launched and then inaugurated a spurt that won the race virtually between the three and three and one-half mile segment.

CARSON HERO OF DAY.

It may have been Yale's aggressiveness and the smooth and steady pace set by the Eli stroke that won the victory, but old river wizards said it was the heady strategy of Carson, the coxswain, that gave Yale her twenty-sixth victory over Harvard.

Carson reminded the layman of Loftus, the jockey, as he crouched at the tiller ropes and chattered to his men. He got them bow to bow with the Crimson and then came his shrill cry resounding above the tumult of the 15,000 persons who viewed the titanic strife as he piped: "Now you got 'em."

Yale's time was 21:42 1-5. Harvard rowed the distance in 21:47 2-5.

Carson's eyes bulged like beads in that crucial half-mile before the last. Through the binoculars he could be seen as he eyed each and every man of Harvard's crew. His gaze was in and out of his boat in an uncanny manner.

CRIMSON BUCKS UP.

In that half mile of Harvard recovery between the two and one-half and three-mile flags, Carson told his men:

"Take a breather."

The stroke fell two beats a minute and the Crimson throng built high their hopes. At the three-mile, Carson again shot his beading eyes over his rivals and shouted:

"Give it to 'em."

The cadence raised. Like whips the oars came into the river. The response was the increased dig of the stroke, who set a murderous pace for his comrades. Blue blades forced the shell into a position which brought calls from the thronged bridge abutments and the banks:

"Harvard is through."

HEAD WIND DELAYS START.

A head wind made the course rough enough to delay the start. It was 7:40 o'clock when the referee ordered the eights to paddle to Moulthrop's Point. A nocturnal atmosphere trailed the sun as it rimmed the Mountville hummocks. A seaplane was throbbing upstream.

Two students fell into the water and were fished out. From the quarters at Red Top and Gales Ferry came the chants of college days and cheers as the Harvard men flipped their shell into the Thames.

As the Crimsonians manned the sweeps Eli's crew hove from Gales Ferry and glided across the golden ribbon that the dying sun cast athwart the historic stream. Harvard arrived first at the jumping off place.

Yale drew alongside quickly. It was a river of echoes walled by cheers. From that moment on the rowing game joined the ranks of athletic comebacks that have emerged from the war clouds.

OBSERVATION TRAIN PACKED.

Eli's average weight was called out at 171 pounds. It was the brawn which was destined to conquer the rough course and hold out in the distance, even over Harvard's avoirdupois of 168¾ pounds to the slide.

Harvard, thanks to Captain Whitman's toss, chose the east or Groton side of the stream.

The crowd at the varsity classic provided a contrast to the cold and clammy reception given the two great finishes of the other crew races.

The observation trains with their four tiers of seats were packed and crept along either side of the Thames. With their canvas cowlings they resembled caravans of prairie schooners such as the frontiersmen used in their treks across the Western wilderness.

It was a gusty, rainy morning and the afternoon ended in a sullen lead of color. There was little of the sun. Dull clouds marched across a murky dome and the indentations of the shore loomed more like tarnished silver half-moons.

HARVARD OFF IN LEAD.

Hundreds of spectators stood on the river bank slopes where mountain laurels and wild daisies peeped from the verdure.

The men were up on their slides at 7:51. The gun puff came across the current as a whisper uttered in a long hall. Harvard caught the water first and jumped to the fore. She had a scant advantage at the half-mile pennons with a time of 2:21 3-5.

At the mile Yale whipped up after a temporary setback and was even with the Crimson. The timers caught both eights at 5:05. Yale increased the cadence and pulled bow to bow with Harvard. They were even at the mile and a half with a time of 7:54 each.

Two miles found Yale a fifth of a second in back of Harvard, the time being 10:35 2-5 for Harvard. No signs of distress were noticeable in either of the cedar shells. It was a beautiful race and a thick struggle for mastery. At the two and one-half miles the Blue was a full length ahead. Time, 13 minutes and 3 seconds in front of Harvard.

STIRRING FINISH.

Carson called for the temporary lull, which allowed Harvard to creep within a second of Yale's time, at the three-mile flags, which was 15:47. Carson put the whip to his men and the three and one-half-mile limits were reached with Yale registering 18:28 1-5 to Harvard's time of 18:29. The cadence was about 28 beats to the minute for Yale and 29 beats for Harvard at this time. Harvard's cadence sank to about 27 and Yale not letting down, came under the bridge winner.

A symphony of whistles rent the air and a heroic contest had been won. Numbers 2, 3 and 4 of the Harvard eight were in a bad way physically but managed to regain their poise after a minute's rest.

The morning's races brought two exciting finishes off Red Top. Harvard's freshman eight won by a scan' four feet.

CRIMSON FRESHIES WIN.

The Crimson yearlings leaped from the starting line and although they were not headed during the two-mile row upstream it was a battle all the way. The time for the crews in this tiff was Harvard 10:38 3-5, Yale 10:57 1-5.

In the race for the second varsity eight the Crimson again routed the Blue and again it was a fight to the finish. Experts said that had Yale started its spurt twenty yards sooner a victory for Eli would have been the order. The Harvard men triumphed by one-third of a length. Time: Harvard, 10:40 4-5; Yale, 10:41 4-5.

How Harvard and Yale Fared in the Big Regatta

Freshman eight—Won by Harvard. Time, 10:36 2-5. Yale's time, 10:57 1-5.

Winner's gain at finish line, five feet.

Varsity second eights—Won by Harvard. Time, 10:40 4-5. Yale's time, 10:41 4-5.

Winner's gain at finish line, one-half length.

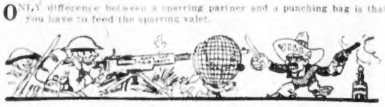

Varsity four-mile race—Won by Yale. Time, 21:42 1-5. Harvard's time, 21:47 2-5.

Winner's gain at finish line, length and a quarter.

TUFTS BEATS UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT BY 1 RUN

Tufts produced a ninth-inning rally and defeated University of Vermont, 6 to 5, before a class day crowd at Tufts Oval yesterday afternoon. The hit which drove in the winning run was made by Bill MacKenzie, playing his last game for the Brown and Blue.

The score:

Vermont	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	2	1	—5

BALL GAME FEATURE AT GENERAL ELECTRIC OUTING

One of the features of the General Electric Co. of Lynn, annual outing at Meadow Park, Lynn, today was to be a baseball game between the crack Bertleson & Peterson Engineering Co. team of East Boston and the Cornets of Lynn.

The B. & P. team is made up of some of the fastest players in New England.

In their line up will be Bill Kelly, Danny Casleden, Charles Boyce, "Hookey" Murphy, "Hennie" Healy, "Red" Gunning.

The battery will be "Lefty" Anderson and "Dit" Flaherty.

JOSEPHS WINS OVER HAYES IN FAST BOUT

Speculative Talent Suffers Set-Back as Result of Brilliant Work of South Ender

By JACK CONWAY.

The speculative talent is today suffering from several more bank-roll wounds as a result of Bobby Joseph's victory over Chick Hayes in a twelve-round bout at the Commercial A. C.

Following their upset at the Fenway A. A., when Young Kloby stopped Charley Parker, the betting element planned to recover at the expense of Joseph's admirers. The brilliant South End featherweight, however, fought the best battle of his career, and had a decided margin on the Indianapolis veteran when the dear old chimes sounded at the end of the final round.

It was the fastest tussle between little men staged in Boston in several months. The result of the mixup proved that the weather-beaten adage which holds youth must be served is still batting a la Babe Ruth.

JOSEPHS HOPPED IN LEAD.

Josephs hopped into the lead in the first session. His whirlwind rushes and smashing left and right-hand blows enabled him to pile up a slight margin of points.

Hayes staged a peppery comeback in the third and fourth chapters and grabbed the honors. For a time it looked as though Joseph's work in the early part of the contest was only a flash and that Hayes had thoroughly mastered the South End youth.

The fastest milling of the fight was crowded into the tenth chapter. And, strange to say, the most effective blow was overlooked by most of the spectators. It was a left hook to the head which Josephs scored after about a minute of fighting. It dazed Hayes for a few seconds. He shook his head, which was proof he was at sea, as it were.

HAYES FORCED TO ROPES.

Josephs followed his advantage by delivering solid left and right hand smashes to the head and body. Hayes was forced to the ropes and was in poor condition when the round ended.

In the eleventh session, Hayes performed a remarkable comeback and outpointed his rushing opponent.

The final stanza was a whirlwind, with Josephs having the best of the fighting.

Frank Tille, North End, bested Young Cahill of Everett in the semi-final bout of eight rounds.

Harry Silva vanquished Frank Rapetto in six rounds. Silva outslugged and outboxed his opponent and looks like a fine ring prospect. MacMurphy stopped Harry Lorring in his first round.

WILLARD ISSUES CALL FOR REAL FIGHTERS

Wants Big Men Who Can Give and Take Steamshovel Clouts and Still Ask for More

By FRANK G. MENKE.

Toledo, June 21.—Once again the call sounds from the Jess Willard headquarters.

"More sparring partners, big ones, husky ones, the boys who can take a walloping and come back for more."

It was figured that when Jack Heinen, 220 pounds ringside, joined the troupe, that Jess finally had taken unto himself one who would give him all the target practice he wanted. But disappointment has come. Either Heinen has a jaw as brittle as a soda cracker or Willard hits today with more dynamic power than ever before in his rather extended fistic career.

HEINEN KNOCKED OUT.

On the day that Heinen, once a sparring partner of Jack Johnson and quite a fist wielder back in his fighting days, made a debut before Willard, he urged Jess to "come right ahead and poke me." Heinen, you see, never had swapped clouts with Jess before and he figured that Jess was nothing more or less than a "pretty good puncher."

But Heinen knows different now.

Jess hardly had warmed up to his task of slugging it with Heinen when he plugged the big fellow in the jawbone with knockout result. A little later Jess unlimbered again and once more Heinen wiggled into helplessness. Ever since then Jess has gone at Heinen rather easily, but occasionally he forgets and sends home a stinging right cross, a left hook or an uppercut, and right afterward Heinen begins counting the stars.

Joe Chip is just a middleweight. Jack Hemple is a heavyweight but a dwarf in comparison with Willard and, although Jess swats him rather viciously he is careful not to let loose with all his big guns. Walter Monohan can take a lot of battering but even Walter, brave as he is, coaxes Jess, "Hit me just so hard but no harder."

SEARCHING FOR FIGHTERS.

While Ray Archer, business manager for Willard, was on his second scouting expedition for sparring partners Willard said yesterday:

"What I need and what I want more than anything else during the closing ten days of my training is one or two big men who will let me cut loose against them. I want to try out the full power of every punch I will carry with me into the Dempsey fight. But as things are now I am handicapped by the fact that my partner is too small and too light to take the best I've got and stand up under it."

DEMPSEY SAYS SIMPLE FOOD IS BEST FOR A BOXER

By JACK DEMPSEY.

Copyright, 1919, by the Evening Mail Syndicate.

The matter of eating always is a source of much worry to the youngster just learning to condition himself for pugilism. It should not be.

There are certain rules of diet, of course, that must be adhered to strictly if one is to build a foundation for good physique, but most youngsters could figure out what helps him and what doesn't without a great deal of instruction if he follows fundamentals.

There is too much stress laid on food as an aid to physical condition. There are some things that should not be eaten, and there are things that help a man attain physical perfection, but so far as hard and fast rules are concerned, I don't believe in them. They cause a man to worry, worry excites the nerves, and excited nerves are worse than anything food could do to a boxer.

So long as a man eats wholesome, solid food, without touching the frills and strange decoctions that are turned out under fancy names, he will be all right. Lots of jokes are made about corned beef and cabbage, but that sort of fare is a lot better than French pastry.

A boxer should never touch greasy stuff before he goes into a fight. It disarranges his digestive system and makes him loggy and slow. It is unnecessary to say, of course, that a boxer should regulate his diet so that he never gets anything fattening.

Boxer Should Avoid Eating Starchy Foods.

During the period of training, starchy foods, especially potatoes, should be avoided, for they are very bad for the wind. I never heard of any one lay any great stress on that fact, but I have found it true that they soften the abdominal muscles, and hence weaken the breathing apparatus, upon which so much dependence must be placed.

A couple of days before fighting, the boxer may, if he feels like it, begin eating thick steaks, not too well done, and add to it plenty of vegetables. They will satisfy his appetite better than other things and will therefore make him better satisfied. They should not be indulged in for a long period preceding a battle.

Puddings and pies, as every one connected with the fight game knows, are very bad. They tend to put on fat and are no good for the digestive organs.

When I am not in strict training I usually begin the day with a couple of eggs, either boiled soft or poached. With this I have some toast and a cup of tea. I do not drink coffee for breakfast. I have it occasionally, but I don't think it is good for any one.

For lunch I have a couple of lamb chops, usually, and some green stuff. I have sliced tomatoes for a salad, with some asparagus, or something of the same sort.

For dinner I choose a steak, with some green vegetables, such as young onions or spinach, and a cup of tea.

That is simple fare and I enjoy it immensely. It makes me feel good and doesn't load my stomach. I make it a rule always to quit eating before my appetite is entirely satisfied. A man who fills his stomach full of food is merely piling up a big job for his digestion, and sooner or later the digestion will break down.

Dempsey Always Adheres to Simple Diet.

I taper this off when I go into hard training, but the simplicity of my diet is always adhered to. I place lots of confidence in my ability to digest what I order.

When I am not training I vary the monotony of keeping in training by walking along the streets wherever I happen to be, looking for something to do. Not long ago I helped a gang mixing concrete and then helped them spread it. I have dug ditches, swept streets, shoveled snow and practically everything of the sort. Labor of that kind hardens the muscles and is fine for the wind.

These are very simple rules, easy to follow. No one should neglect such little rules for his health, whether he is an athlete or not. Office men particularly should pay attention to these lessons in health building, for they are in every one's reach and the cost is trifling.

SOX-BROWNS IN FINAL BATTLE

How to Play Baseball

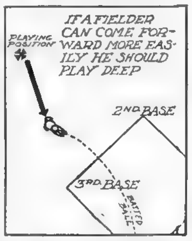

THIS is the twenty fifth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this ... Mr. Fullerton tells how to play left field. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Speed, a quick eye, a strong arm and hands strong enough to hold any ball that the fielder can reach are the requisites of all outfielders. In addition to this it is desirable that fielders be keen of sight and possess practically as much knowledge of the peculiarities of the batters of opposing teams as do the pitcher and catcher.

The left fielder is in some respects the most important of the outfielders. He does not get as many chances to make plays as does the centre fielder, but his work and that of the right fielder is more difficult because of the nature of hard-hit balls which curve when either pulled or sliced.

The position of the left fielder depends largely upon the charac...

To cut off even one such hit and hold a runner at first base is a big help in any game. The balls hit in that manner usually are three baggers if they pass the fielder and singles if cut off quickly.

The desirability of a left fielder having speed is great ...

This Day in History—June 21, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the execution of Bishop Fisher in England in 1511 for denying the supremacy of Henry VIII. and refusing to acknowledge as legal that monarch's marriage to Anne Boleyn. The sending by Pope Paul III. of a cardinal's hat to Fisher sealed his fate.

CHAPTER XIX.

"SOMEBODY'S got to marry that crazy woman," ... spoke ... upon the ... of the room to which the priest had taken them. "Not only will he be a hero by saving our lives, but he will save his own as well. Now, Senor Torres, is your chance to save all our lives and your own."

... "I would not marry her for ... You know. She is too wise. She's terrible. She how shall I say she—as you Americans say, gets my goat. I am a brave man. But before her I am not brave. The flesh of me melts of fear. Not for less than ten million would I dare to overcome my fear. Now Henry and Francis are braver than I. Let one of them marry."

"But I am engaged to marry Leoncia," Henry spoke up promptly. "... I cannot marry the Queen."

"It's not fair," ... "None of you wants to marry her ... one equitable way to settle it will be by drawing lots." As she spoke she pulled three straws from the mat on which she sat and broke one off short. "The man who draws the short straw shall be the victim. You, Senor Torres, draw first."

"Wedding bells for the short straw." Henry grinned.

Torres crossed himself ... drew. So patently long was the straw that he executed a series of dancing steps ... [illegible] bachelor who isn't afraid of matrimony. I'll marry her."

Henry's relief was as if he had been reprieved from impending death. His hand shot out to Francis' hand and, while they clasped, their eyes gazed squarely into each other's as only decent honest men's eyes may gaze. Nor did either see the dismay registered in Leoncia's face at this unexpected denouement. The Lady Who Dreams had been right. Leoncia, as a woman, was unfair, loving two men and denying the Lady her fair share of men.

But any discussion that might have taken place was prevented by the little maid of the village, who entered with the woman to serve them the midday meal. It was Torres' sharp eyes that first lighted on the string of gems about the maid's neck. Rubies they were and magnificent.

"The Lady Who Dreams just gave them to me," the maid said pleased with their possession in her new possession.

"Has she any more?" Torres asked.

"Of course," was the reply. "Only just now did she show me a great chest of them. And they were all kinds, and much larger but they were not strung. They were like so much shelled corn."

While the others ate and talked, Torres nervously smoked a cigarette. After that he arose and claimed a passing indisposition that prevented him from eating.

"Listen," he quoth impressively. "I speak better Spanish than either of you two Morgans. Also, I know, I am confident the Spanish woman character better. To show my heart's in the right place I'll go in to her now and see if I can talk her out of this matrimonial proposition."

One of the spearmen barred Torres' way but after going within, returned and motioned him to enter. The Queen, reclined on the divan, nodded him to her graciously.

"You do not eat?" she queried solicitously; and added after he had reaffirmed his loss of appetite: "Then you drink?"

Torres' eyes sparkled. Between the excitement he had gone through for the past several days, and the new adventure he was resolved upon, he knew not how to achieve he felt the important need of a drink. The Queen clapped her hands, and issued commands to the waiting women who responded.

"It is very ... [illegible] ... as you will recognize Da Vasco, who brought it here ... four centuries ago," she said as a man carried in and broached a small wooden keg.

About the age of the keg there could be no doubt, and Torres, knowing that it had crossed the Western Ocean twelve generations before, felt his throat tickle with desire to taste its contents. The drink poured by the waiting woman was a big one, yet was Torres startled by the mildness of it. But quickly the magic of four-centuries-old spirits began to course through his veins and set the maggots crawling in his brain.

The Queen bade him sit on the edge of the divan at her feet, where she could observe him, and asked:

"You came unsummoned. What is it you have to tell me or ask of me?"

"You're thinking how I didn't make friends with Betty at first, and how fond I am of her now," I replied thoughtfully.

Now was the time to get Jim's point of view, to re-establish myself as partner and confidante as well as wife. Even if Jim hurt me a bit, I thought I could manage to ... [illegible]

Ideal Husband Never a "Mollycoddle"

"IDEAL HUSBAND? Mine is the sum total of all that much abused word indicates."

So writes one woman, in the American's prize contest on "The Ideal Modern Husband." Two others say, in substance, the same thing. So do many, but the three referred to are cited especially because their letters received honorable mention in the contest. They are given ...

Pleasant Cookery

Little Freddie looked up from his plate of home made cakes with a knowing smile. "I'll tell you why Mary's cakes are so good," he said. "She's always singing when she's mixing, and the song gets into 'em!"

A Graduation Frock

By Rita Stuyvesant

WITH school commencement exercises here, graduation frocks are among the principal thoughts of young ladies. And such delightful simple models they are, too, portraying all the charm of the girl in her teens. No longer are elaborate gowns considered correct for graduation, for they are reserved for the bride, while plain little frocks, exquisitely dainty, mark the time when the school days are over.

The possibilities of sheer white organdie for creating the daintiest, most charming of all youthful frocks are unlimited and offer several suggestions for graduation. One lovely frock frilled for the occasion was made with a long ... finished with a cuff ... The edge of the cuff was outlined with a plaited frill of self-material. Underneath was a narrow skirt with a deep shadow hem.

Quaint Bodice

The bodice of this simple frock was indeed quaint. Slashed at the front, the neckline was finished with a narrow bias fold and outlined with a plaited frill like the tunic. Wide slash ends were joined at the underarm seams and tied in a huge bow at the back. Of course the sleeves were elbow length favoring fashion's latest whim ... sleeves.

... swiss and filet ... [illegible] ... to make another attractive frock for graduation. A ... little bodice puffed over at the belt, Russian style, was buttoned ... It was ... with a six inch frill of filet lace falling from the round neck like a cape and was softly becoming to the throat. Short tight sleeves showed a ... of fil... that took the place of a cuff.

Dainty Two-Piece Skirt

Very airy and dainty, too, was the two-piece skirt that was scant ... Side tunics of the dotted swiss were bordered with a two-inch hem, and filet ... and they did not quite drop to knee length. A sash of soft satin ... double ... draped itself gracefully down the back to the hem.

These lovely graduation frocks will be serviceable all during the Summer months at the country dance or perhaps for a tea at the club. Worn with a large drooping flower-laden hat, they will leave nothing more to be desired for youthful charm.

Household Suggestions

From a discarded coat an ingenious mother made three garments that have given their little wearers the greatest pleasure and have saved her much work. The first was a pair of rompers, or waders, for the little girl to paddle in; the next a photographer's apron for the little boy, who, to his delight, but to the ruin of his clothes, had learned to develop and print his own photographs; and the last a big soap-bubble apron for the little four-year-old. Seated in a high chair, with a bowl of soapsuds and a little glass tube, he has found hours of amusement and, thanks to the mackintosh apron, has kept dry.

* * *

Before putting on kid gloves, hold them in front of a fire for a moment or two. This will free the oil in the kid and make it more supple, thus rendering the gloves easier to put on.

The reliance that womenkind has learned to put in crackers is being well illustrated at the teas being given for returning soldiers and sailors.

Every woman ... the metropolis has in her pantry ... generous supply of the National ... Company's always ... and universally accepted ...

Nettie, ... comely young ... yeoman of the Navy, ... uniform, found herself unexpectedly entertaining a ... tea at her uptown ... the other afternoon including several young officers ... a battleship in port.

She had Fig Newtons ... every soldier ... vated a liking ... bisco and ... tea was ... Douglas ... "But ... cover ... [illegible]

On a ... edged with ... mona and Lotus ... Some bruised leaves lay at the bottom of the basket, and the ... emitted a delicate fragrance, adding charm to the delightfully flavored sugar-filled wafers which they supported.

There was no question about the complete success of Nettie's discovery, as the fragrance of the fresh cups of tea which she served added to the inviting repast.

Another favorite at the tea hour—and ... sees them almost as much ... breakfast and luncheon—is the N. B. C. Graham Cracker. It seems indispensable in modern housekeeping. People have been so thoroughly lectured about the thousands of ... graham flour that ... is a mat... [illegible] ... knew a man ... UNITED SHOE AN ACTIVE LOCAL FEATURE

Boston List Marked by Gains at Opening and Later

The Boston market had a firm opening and earliest prices were on a higher level. United Shoe was the feature, opening at a fractional advance and maintaining its strength later. Prospect of increased business for this corporation is the reason assigned for the recent activity of its common shares.

The price range was narrow in this market, but several issues showed substantial gains during the morning. They included United Fruit, Swift International and Swift & Co. Packing house issues ruled higher. There was not much trading in coppers.

Among active stocks were Stewart, Ventura Oil and Fairbanks.

There were weak spots in the list. Among stocks to decline were Fairbanks and Boston Elevated.

The local market was strong at the close, with Swift & Co. up 2 at 138 and United Fruit 1½ at 185. United Shoe closed at 52¼, off ½.

INCREASE CAPITAL OF BANK BY $400,000

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, held at the bank's quarters, No. 60 Devonshire street, it was voted unanimously to increase the capitalization from $200,000 to $600,000. The surplus was increased from $250,000 to $550,000. This, with the deposits of over $11,000,000, places the bank in a better and stronger financial position than ever before.

The stockholders oversubscribed by one hundred per cent. the number of new shares allotted to them, and the bank is entering upon its new fiscal year with a constantly increasing business.

The officers of the bank are: Max Mitchell, president; Silas Peirce, vice-president; Patrick F. O'Keefe, vice-president; Richard Pinksohn, vice-president; George M. Rich, treasurer; Frank Dierauf, assistant treasurer, and Frank G. Howard, secretary. The directors are: L. Agoos, Patrick J. Bergin, Rocco Brindisi, Edward C. Donnelly, Michael J. Jordan, P. R. Magrane, Max Mitchell, Patrick F. O'Keefe, R. H. Oveson, Silas Peirce, Hiram J. Potter, Benjamin A. Prager, Gabriele Stabile and Simon Vorenberg.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, June 21.—The sub-treasury gained $5,497,000 from the banks on Friday.

GOVERNMENT TO HELP IMPROVE HIGHWAYS

The war will result in a great improvement in highways in this country, for the government is going to use all of the road building and truck equipment it shipped to France and which can be brought back in road development in the United States. The War Department has transferred already 26,000 war motor trucks, valued at $50,000,000, to the Department of Agriculture, and graders, car loaders, rock crushers and other equipment will be turned over as fast as they can be returned from the war area.

A measure pending in the United States Senate provides for a Federal Highway Commission, and the linking of all national highways into one system.

Texas Crude Oil Output

It is estimated from reports to the Controller of Texas that the crude petroleum production of that State in 1919 will not be much below 70,000,000 barrels. Its market value should exceed $125,000,000.

Cotton Prices Advanced

New York, June 21.—British buying at the opening sent cotton prices 17 to 30 points higher, with the exception of July. Japanese interests bought on the call. Wall street was a buyer also. At the end of twenty minutes the market was steady, with the list about 28 points net higher. Opening prices were: July, 32.00; Oct., 31.88; Dec., 31.80; Jan., 31.80; March, 31.55.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, June 21.—Opening prices on the Board of Trade were: Corn, July, 1.81¼; Sept., 1.74½; Dec., 1.51¼ to 1.50⅝. Oats, July, 70½; Sept., 70½ to 69⅞; Dec., 71¼ to 71. Pork, Sept., 49.30. Lard, Sept., 34.70. Ribs, Sept., 28.10.

Dividend Declarations

United States Industrial Alcohol Co. declared regular quarterly 1¾ per cent. preferred dividend, payable July 15 to stock of record June 30.

International Mercantile Marine Corp. declared regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. on preferred, payable August 1 to stock of record July 15.

Massachusetts Lighting Cos. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on the preferred stock, payable July 15 to stock of record June 25.

Federal Reserve Bank of Boston declared a dividend on its capital stock for the period January 1 to June 30, 1919, at rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

Flint Cotton Mills Corp. declared a quarterly dividend of 4 per cent., payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 18. Three months ago it paid 2 per cent.

National Union Bank declared regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 per share, payable July 1 to stock of record June 20.

Osborn Mills Corp. declared a quarterly dividend of 4 per cent., payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 21. Last quarter it paid 2 per cent.

MOTOR ISSUES STRONG AND ACTIVE

Tobaccos Make Gains and American Bosch Magneto Climbs in Price

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at the close after a session in which trading was active and the price movement upward in the main from the opening. Realization selling reduced gains near the close, as is usual at the week-end. Final prices were below the best morning level. Issues to sell at record highest prices were United Cigar Stores, Tobacco Products, Texas & Pacific and Virginia-Carolina Chemical. American Bosch Magneto was a second hour feature, showing more than six points advance at its top quotation. Other issues to show large gains at their morning highest were American Linseed Oil, American Ice, Atlantic Gulf, Hide & Leather preferred, Chandler, Mexican Petroleum and Industrial Alcohol. They were up two or more points.

U. S. Steel closed with ¼ gain at 107⅝, after ranging from 107⅝ to 108⅛. General Motors was up 5½ at 232½, after selling at 235½; Studebaker finished with 2¾ advance at 107; United Cigar Stores was up 3¼ at 165, its highest record price; Tobacco Products showed a gain of 1¼ at 107⅝ and Crucible 2⅝ at 94⅞. American Bosch Magneto closed at 105, up 5⅛.

ADVANCES AT OPENING.

Strength featured the list when the exchange began business, with oil, motor, steel, shipping, tobacco and leather issues advancing. Almost every active issue sold higher. There was buying orders at hand from all over the country, and the supply of stocks seemed limited. The course of call money yesterday was reassuring, and expectation that Germany will sign the peace treaty and end uncertainty which has retarded readjustment of world affairs for months was a dominating market influence. A number of issues advanced a point or more on first transactions, among them being General Motors, Baldwin, Central Leather and Tobacco Products. Profit-taking followed the advance, but had more effect upon oils and rubbers than other groups.

There was no reaction of consequence during the first hour. Some issues increased their gains considerably during that period, General Motors showing more than eight points gain, and Studebaker more than three. Much of the early buying was accounted for by covering of shorts. A number of investment issues were in especial demand, this buying being largely on Western orders.

BUSINESS REPORTS VARIED.

Reports as to business conditions varied, but were encouraging in the main. There is much better sentiment in the steel trade and belief if there is stabilization of labor prices building will be resumed on a scale proportionate to national needs. There is concern over the labor outlook, however. This is affecting a number of industries. Strikes at brass plants had diminished demand for copper.

There is uncertainty as to what miners will do on July 1, but it cannot be said that copper producers are much alarmed by strike threats. Many are ready to close mines and await events. It will take several months to consume the metal surplus. There is about enough on hand to serve the world's ordinary needs for almost a year. By the time the surplus is gone copper will have a market at prices which will provide profits even at advanced labor costs. A general shutdown of mines would send the metal price up at once, it is said.

Steel Earnings Increase

According to manufacturers, June earnings of steel companies will show an increase over March or April figures. The U. S. Steel Corporation is expected to show considerable increase in unfilled tonnage in its next report.

City Loans

Holyoke, Mass., will receive bids until 10 a. m. Wednesday, June 25, for the purchase of $175,000 4½ per cent. bonds.

Watertown, Mass., sold to the Commonwealth Trust Company at 4.25 per cent. discount a temporary loan of $100,000, maturing $50,000 December 22, 1919, and $50,000 April 16, 1920.

Cambridge, Mass., city treasurer will receive bids until noon, June 23, for the purchase at discount of a loan of $200,000, dated June 26 and maturing January 26, 1920.

SHOES WILL BE FAR HIGHER IN PRICE

Advance of 40 Per Cent. in Next Six Months Is Predicted

There is complaint all over Europe as well as America at the advancing price for shoes, a New York newspaper printing a report from a London correspondent that the British public is aroused. Britons are criticising their government for keeping American shoes out of English markets and restricting leather imports. If more American shoes were sold abroad prices here would go still higher, and they have climbed 15 per cent. so far in June. Still higher prices in the Autumn are predicted.

According to a leading New England manufacturer shoes that sell at $5 now will bring $7 six months hence, and those now marketed at from $16 to $18 will cost the wearer $25 a pair then.

High prices for footwear are due chiefly to the scarcity of leather. There is a world shortage, and the way prices have ascended this year is without precedent. For native cowhides 40 to 42 cents a pound was paid last week, as compared with 22 to 27 cents in December last. In union leather, middleweight cowbacks were firmly held at 88 cents a pound a week ago, having advanced from a maximum of 72 cents in December. In regard to upper leather, calfskins have doubled in price since the close of last year.

Lack of sufficient shipping is said to be one cause for advance in leather prices. A Washington correspondent reports that there are about 900,000 cattle hides, weighing approximately 50,000,000 pounds, withheld for shipment from the Argentine region by labor troubles and dearth of vessels. Although there is said to be such a large stock in Argentina its shipment would not reduce leather costs much in this or other countries. Hides are bringing 41 cents a pound in the Argentine. This in former times would have been deemed a preposterous figure.

It will take a long time to supply all the leather the world needs. It takes about three years to produce much of a hide.

SUGAR MELTINGS HAVE INCREASED THIS YEAR

The domestic demand for sugar is increasing and is of such magnitude at present that refiners are withdrawing export quotations. Exports this year up to June 15 are estimated at 273,233 tons, compared with 22,457 tons for the corresponding period last year. Exports for the whole of 1918 totalled approximately 150,000 tons only.

Up to the middle of this month meltings for 1919 by Boston, New York and Philadelphia refiners have totalled 1,373,484 tons, compared with 1,190,594 for a like period in 1918.

NOTICE TO HOLDERS OF UNITED STATES TREASURY CERTIFICATES OF INDEBTEDNESS DATED FEB. 27, 1919, AND MATURING JULY 29, 1919.

All United States Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness of Series V-G dated Februry 27, 1919, and maturing July 29, 1919, are hereby called for redemption on July 1, 1919, at par and accrued interest pursuant to the provision for such redemption contained in the Certificates. On July 1, 1919, interest on all Certificates of said Series will cease to accrue.

CARTER GLASS,
Secretary of the Treasury.

June 20, 1919.

BUSINESS BOOM GROWS LARGER

"Newspaper advertising seems to be solving the problems of business reconstruction," says a review just issued by the bureau of advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association. "Immediately after the war a great increase in newspaper advertising was noticed. Each month it has continued and today it is not unusual for newspapers to report one hundred per cent. increases in national advertising in lineage over the same period in 1918.

"For a few months after the armistice was signed, business men were asking whether or not this advertising would pay. Today they are wondering whether they can fill their orders and get help enough to run their factories."

Will Expand Production

It is understood that the new platinum mining company which Lewisohn and British interests control will greatly increase production from the 10,000 acres held by it in Columbia. New Machinery has been ordered and engineers have blocked out new fields. Platinum is now valued at about $107 an ounce.

More Gold for Export

Gold coin withdrawals from the New York subtreasury yesterday for shipment to South America totalled $9,665,000, and brings gold export engagements since June 12 up to $30,537,000, not including about $20,000,000 obtained in this country by Japan.

DEMAND FOR COPPER IS NOW VERY LIMITED

The demand for copper is very limited at present and small selling interests have not been able to dispose of much metal by shading the price. Largest interests still ask 17⅝ to 17¾ cents a pound for June and July delivery and 18 for August. It is expected, however, that demand from some quarters must be urgent before long. A Boston manufacturer states that copper wire supplies are very small. Brass goods are scarce also.

Labor troubles in brass manufacturing centres have affected the copper metal market. "Some June copper," it is stated, "has been resold by purchasers at concessions from the late high price level, the buyers preferring to take chances of lower prices rather than to hold the copper during an indefinite period of idleness brought on by their employees."

It is also stated that of the more than 100,000,000 pounds of copper bought so far this month purchasers have asked for postponement of delivery of from 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 pounds.

Shoe Plant for Italy

President Malaguti of the Columbia Counter Company of Boston stated in New York after he returned from a business trip to his fatherland that he planned to establish in Italy a shoe manufacturing plant equipped with American machinery.

Granby Mining Production

Copper production by the Granby company for the current fiscal year will not be much in excess of 25,000,000 pounds, it is estimated. Its output for the preceding year was about 45,000,000 pounds.

TEXCALOKAN OIL & GAS COMPANY
BUYS MORE PRODUCTION AND PROPERTIES
IMPORTANT ADDITION TO EARNING POWER AND POSSIBILITIES

The policy of the Texcalokan Company is to ACQUIRE PRODUCTION. This policy is being rigidly carried out. It is the policy of the Standard and the big independent oil companies. Columbus discovered America, but didn't get much out of it. We pay for oil discoveries—WE BUY PRODUCTION.

In the last fortnight the company has purchased two quarter sections in the famous Osage Nation Reservation of Oklahoma—THE NEW OIL FIELD OF OKLAHOMA—in a big sale where Guffey-Gillespie, Cosden, Sinclair, Carter Oil and other big Standard and independent interests bought territory not far distant from us—some of it at record prices—above $400,000. These properties are so located that production of great volume is assured. The surrounding territory has been and is being proved up as to big production.

We have also just purchased 60 acres of profitable producing territory in Nowata county, Oklahoma, where we have already large holdings. On this new acquisition are eight producing wells, whose settled output shows earnings of 50% annually on the price at which it was acquired by the Texcalokan Company.

In a few days we expect to make public an official statement showing the net earnings of the company on all stock issued and outstanding and we are satisfied the showing will be such as to justify an immediate advance in the price of Texcalokan shares—now

$1.25 A SHARE

In the meantime we advise the purchase of TEXCALOKAN stock at $1.25 a share, discounting NOW the forthcoming important announcements covering in more detail property and production acquisitions and increase of both actual earning power and earning possibilities.

RECORD ALUMNI GATHERING AT WILLIAMS

Class Day Exercises Featured by Brilliant Speaking and Reading

Williamstown, June 21.—Although only seventy-eight seniors will graduate this year at Williams College the commencement exercises will be attended by the largest reunion of alumni in the history of the institution.

Class Day exercises were held on the campus and in Grace Hall. Leonard Ford Wright, president of the graduating class, delivered the address.

The class poem was given by Allyn Coates Swinnerton and the Ivy poem by Michael Vaugh Charnley. The Ivy oration was delivered by George Avery White. Charles Alfred Greeff gave the library oration, Charles Kenneth Parker delivered the pipe oration and the address to the lower classes was given by Arthur Goodwin Wild.

In the Graves prize speaking contest there were three contestants, who had the following subjects: Edwin G. Hughes, Jr., "An Income Tax for All"; Edgar Young Patterson, "Washington Gladden," and Charles Kenneth Parker, "Theodore Roosevelt." The prize will be awarded Monday.

Additional work for the preparation of a war record of Williams men in service included the presentation of a blank form which each alumnus is to fill out with his service record. When the history is complete it will be published in book form.

Of All Times the Worst Time to Hamstring Naval Defence

Good again for Secretary of the Navy Daniels. He is fighting a most extraordinary program of penny wisdom and pound folly parsimony by certain dominating members of the Republican organization of the House of Representatives concerning our naval preparedness.

Secretary Daniels says that forty-five million dollars must be spent to keep the American navy abreast of the progress of the other navies of the world in the development of aviation as part of our naval power. The penuriousness and shortsightedness of certain Republican members of the House, seeking unpatriotically to make a record for economy at the expense of their country's safety, have succeeded in cutting down the appropriation for naval aviation to fifteen millions, or ONE-THIRD THE AMOUNT which Secretary Daniels and his associated naval experts declare is necessary.

Secretary Daniels, in a letter to Senator Page, chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, calls attention to the fact that the House Committee cuts his appropriation to $15,000,000, while the appropriation in Great Britain for the current year amounts in round numbers to THREE HUNDRED AND TWENTY MILLIONS. Secretary Daniels says:

"The Naval bill, as reported to the House, has cut the appropriation for navy aviation to $15,000,000. I deem it my duty to bring to your attention the fact that with this amount navy aviation will practically 'mark time' during the next year of rapid development of this arm of the navy in countries other than the United States. This is sufficiently indicated by the fact that in Great Britain the appropriation for aviation made for the current year amounts in round figures to $320,000,000.

"This includes all aviation for military purposes and should, of course, be compared with the total contemplated for both army and navy in the United States, amounting to something like $30,000,000."

In other words, the total appropriation for aviation purposes by Great Britain is more than ten times the amount appropriated for similar purposes by the United States.

Now, what kind of stupidity is it that makes it necessary for Secretary Daniels to fight to get an appropriation of $45,000,000 for the development of that branch of our naval service?

Fifty years ago we practically surrendered our world leadership in democratic reforms.

We surrendered our greatness on the sea and we appeared to have led during recent years in nothing except the amassing of wealth, which we have been able to do by the bounty of nature and our isolation from the political intrigues of the old world and from its destructive wars.

But now we are approaching that condition of our natural resources more comparable with the conditions in the rest of the world.

The great free lands are appropriated. The virgin soil no longer yields without intensive cultivation. The ore and the coal come only with more intensive labor. The forests are being exhausted through the extravagance and wastefulness and shortsightedness that are characteristically American.

The level of real wages in more and more industries is approaching the European level.

Already the home market is no longer sufficient for the support of our industries.

Therefore, if the time has not already come when we cease to have a safe margin in nature's gratuities to protect us from the penalties of our wastefulness and slackness and lack of social intelligence and vision, that time will soon come.

When it does come, if the American democracy has not abolished the kind of piffling, shortsighted, stupid politician, typified by the men who voted to cut down the amount of money devoted to the development of our naval aviation to $15,000,000, in the face of the enormous appropriation which Great Britain is making to it, we shall face relative decadence.

Imagine the mental capacity and the patriotism of men who would take away from America her great safety insurance, the power of her navy, in such a period as we are passing through today, when the whole world is rumbling with pent up discontent and liable any moment to break out in another gigantic eruption.

Imagine men who like to consider themselves statesmen because they are members of Congress who would reduce to inefficiency our great bulwark of safety—the Navy—at a time when there are twenty wars still in progress, with men butchering each other in all of them, when the nations which have been most unctuous in their professions of a desire to make a just peace, which shall stabilize the world, are busy making one of the most oppressive peace treaties the world has seen, when that part of the world which alleged that it was fighting for democracy is in such a moral flunk that the best the professors of the "peace on earth and good-will toward men" can produce is a treaty which violates every professed moral object of the war and which in almost every one of its important provisions contains the seeds of a future war.

The world has not yet seen the time when friendship or moral considerations restrain foreign nations from taking advantage of their power, when taking advantage of it brings profit to those who exercise that power. If, after all the professions which we have heard concerning the object for which the entente allies waged this war, we find them incapable of making a better peace than is proposed today at Paris, we should deserve the fate which will overtake us some day if we failed to be warned by the utter moral bankruptcy which political leaders are exhibiting at Paris.

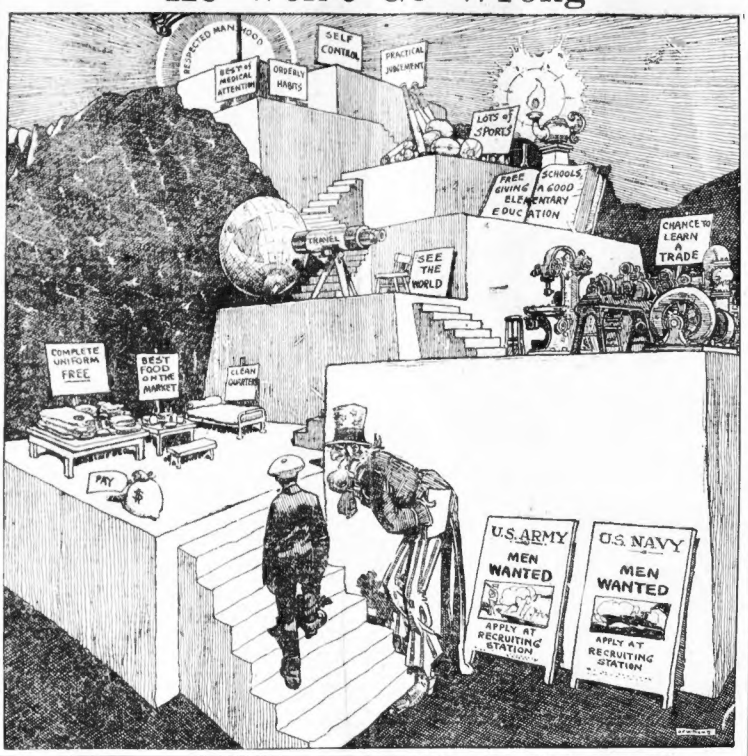

STARS AND STRIPES

Now and then some Englishman still finds the terminal facilities in Ireland to be fairly good.

Some people act as if they were afraid there might be a tax on good cheer.

Portuguese who have been living in the United States are going to Mexico to escape the danger of being thirsty after the first of July. Some people will do anything for drink.

He Won't Go Wrong

More Truth Than Poetry

TH' LITTLE FELLER

By S. E. KISER

I CAN name a little feller that is five years old today.
And the world would be much duller if he ever went away;
Seems as though the sun keeps shinin' just to keep him feelin' glad;
Seems as though the birds keep singin' so he'll not be gettin' sad!
Oh, I know a little feller full o' ginger to the brim—
Hear that racket in the attic? Ain't it beautiful? That's him!

EVERYTHING'S all scratched to pieces. When I want to use the saw
It's an all-day job to find it—and I s'pose I often jaw;
There's a mighty lot of trouble that the little rascal brings,
Seems as though he can't be quiet, and he's always breakin' things;
—But I guess he's worth the worry—yes, in fact, I'm sure he is
When he calls me "Mister Grampa" in that cunnin' way o' his.

IT appears his Pa was needed—anyhow he had to go;
Married kind of young, did William; I don't blame him for it, though!
Well, he went and done his duty, and he won't come home no more,
So I've lately learned some lessons that I never knew before;
Children used to irritate me—couldn't understand their ways—
But I've sort of got to feelin' lots more patient nowadays.

THERE'S a happy little feller who is worth his weight in gold
Seven million times and over—and today he's five years old!
Seems as though the blossoms only come because he wants 'em to;
If he wasn't here there's nothin' that I'd find worth while to do;
But, for him I'm keeping busy, full of grit and full of vim—
Hear him yellin' like an Injun—and that hammerin'? That's him.

"The first really true and comprehensive picture of the present British system in Ireland"—that is WHAT T. P. O'CONNOR SAYS ABOUT THE INDICTMENT OF WALSH AND DUNNE IN THE CASE OF IRELAND. "It is a terrible indictment of the system of repression at present enforced," says Mr. O'Connor, "and every effort is being made to keep it from the knowledge of the whole world. It gives a good idea of the system in Ireland, that not a single Irish journal dare publish a line of what Messrs. Walsh and Dunne charge, under threat from the censor of long terms of imprisonment at the hands of the court-martial. I myself disagree with some of the indictment's general statements regarding conditions in Ireland, but in the main I must confirm and welcome it as THE FIRST REALLY TRUE AND COMPREHENSIVE PICTURE OF THE PRESENT BRITISH SYSTEM IN IRELAND.

In line with this is the continuation of GEORGE CREEL'S own masterly indictment of England—fifth article in his Irish series appearing exclusively in this paper. "The oppression of two centuries has failed to break Erin's spirit," writes Mr. Creel. "In the face of defeat, famine, pestilence and exile, she struggles on for liberty, undaunted!"

To the Editor

Praises American Editorials

Editor, Boston American:

To congratulate you again, on the editorials of yesterday and today—"The Knox Resolution Shows Sensible and Patriotic Statesmanship; Should Be Supported by All Americans" and "President Wilson's Vacillation May Lose for Us the Greatest Merchant Fleet in the World"—would be but a mild approval.

Those editorials are historic documents, of transcending importance. Only the future can tell the full meaning of them.

I thank God that there are still clear-thinking men to champion our cause, while the world is in such a sad state of affairs, and while statesmen who were to bring light to us have become blind leaders of the blind.

The manner in which your paper has torn itself from party interests in opposing some of President Wilson's plans, especially in the league "intrigue," as soon as an American issue was at stake, is most admirable. Keep up your good fight. You will win in the end—You are winning.

I wish the above mentioned editorials would be printed in tract form and scattered broadcast over the country. Not all Americans read the "American," but all Americans will subscribe to the Americanism in them.

Grateful to you,
P. G. P.

Mr. Employer, how do you treat the men who come to you for jobs?

Are you gruff, discourteous and overbearing?

The applicant cannot know how many come to you every day and cannot realize any excuse for your incivility.

And there is no excuse, for it is honorable for a man to sell his services, just as honorable as it is for you to try to sell your wares.

You cannot conduct your business without help.

You cannot make a great success without asking people to buy your product.

You think courtesy should be shown your travelling men, for instance, and you do not see any reason for being civil to the men looking for work.

One is selling services, the other is selling products.

One is necessary to the other.

VOLUNTARY VICTIM OF A FORBIDDEN LOVE

By Winifred Black

HERE is the answer to your letter, "Puzzled." It didn't take me one minute to think it out. You aren't the only person with such a problem to solve.

Not a week passes but I get letters from blind, foolish girls who think they can fly in the face of every established rule of decency and honor and common sense and be rewarded by living happily ever after.

That's the reason I thought it might be interesting to publish your letter, almost in full.

"My employer is married, and I love him"—and you tell it not as you would say, "I wanted a diamond ring and so I went to my friend's house and stole it," or "I needed money for a new hat and so I picked a pocket to get it." And yet that is just exactly the kind of thing you are confessing when you say that you're in love with a married man.

Can't help it? Well, maybe, you can't, but you can at least have sense enough to be ashamed of it.

That man belongs to another woman. You have no right even to think of him. Who are you, to consider yourself at the expense of another woman and a little, helpless child—to say nothing of the man himself?

There have been cases when men have divorced their wives to marry other women, and have been happier and better off in every way afterward. But these cases are so few and so far between that they aren't worth the trouble of counting.

Shilly-shally, dilly-dally, maybe and maybe not, here today and gone tomorrow—what kind of a man is a man who cannot make up his mind as to his own affairs and keep it made up without any assistance from you?

Open Your Eyes

This man hasn't even asked you to sympathize with him.

He would probably resent it very much if he knew you thought of such a thing.

How do you know he isn't deeply in love with his wife and anxious for reconciliation with her?

Who is it tells you all these interesting little things about him and his domestic affairs? What do they know about it—and how do they find out?

Not what dot hey guess, or wonder, or suspect—but what do they actually know?

"Positive he loves me, but he hasn't spoken of love"—why, you poor foolish, conceited little girl! The man probably is fond of you, just as a man is fond of a good friend and loyal employe, but that doesn't mean he's in love with you.

If he were in love with you as you think he is he could never spend five years with you day in and day out without saying something about it.

No man on earth ever did a think like that or ever can do it.

If he had any just cause to leave his wife, he wouldn't have to give up his baby girl that you talk so much about. He could take her right along with him. The reason he doesn't get a divorce is probably the one best reason in the world—he doesn't want to.

You're only twenty-four. Go away. You'll find a good, clean, honest love somewhere else, and the man who finds such a love in his heart for you won't wait five years before he tells you of it.

"Clean, honest love!" How can you use such words about a love that is secret and forbidden?

Weigh the Consequences

Take your own life into your hands, if you must. Humiliate yourself to the last degree if you are determined to do so, but do it with your eyes wide open, and be prepared for the consequences.

What are the consequences of such an affair?

To a woman—disgrace, humiliation, remorse and bitter, bitter grief.

Don't think you're an exception to the rule—don't think your case is different from the case of any other girl and any other man.

Ten chances to one he's lying awake nights trying to figure out some way to get rid of you. Plain words, these—for a plain situation.

Take them as they are meant—in all kindness.
